CONSIDER DOCKS FOR GULF LINE

Ordered, that the Massachusetts House of Representatives, believing that the proposed establishing of Boston as a terminal point for the steamers now operated by the Southern Pacific Railroad between New York and New Orleans and Galveston, would be greatly to the commercial advantage of the Commonwealth, hereby records its approval of the efforts which are being made in that direction.—Order adopted by the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Despite official denials there is no doubt that the Southern Pacific Railroad is looking favorably toward Boston, and if adequate dockage facilities can be secured in Boston a tentative New Orleans steamship service may be established.

The scheme at present is to operate a fortnightly service with the two smaller boats of the Atlantic line of the Southern Pacific. These vessels have a displacement tonnage of 7,500, and would be among the largest coastwise steamers sailing from Boston. A Southern Pacific official said:

> We have been assured by the New Haven people that they do not own the Harvard and Yale on the route

He was whirled around a score or more times in less than half a minute. Except for tearing his clothing from his body and bruising him in spots, Strout was practically unhurt.

Sixteen persons were killed in the town of Ciudad, Guzman, and thirteen wer seriously injured. Twelve shocks wer felt at Guadalajara, while in Cuartel moer than half a million dollars damage was done, including the complete distruction of a large church.

Following the shocks the Colima volcano became active, throwing out lava and sand in its first eruption since it destroyed the city of Zapatlan in 1906. The local observatory here predicts a disastrous earthquake in Mexico City within twelve hours.

COLLIER FLIES WITH BROOKINS UP NORTH RIVER

NEW YORK, May 9.—Starting from his country home at Wickadunk, N. J., today, Robert J. Collier and Walter Brookins flew over Staten Island, the Narrows, and then up the North River, where the machine became lost in the fog. The flight was one of the longest ever made around New York by two men in a hydro-aeroplane. While it was coming up the bay the duck-like aircraft sailed directly over the steamship Panama, which was coming into port. The big coast liner gave the machine a salute, as did all other sorts of craft in the bay and North River.

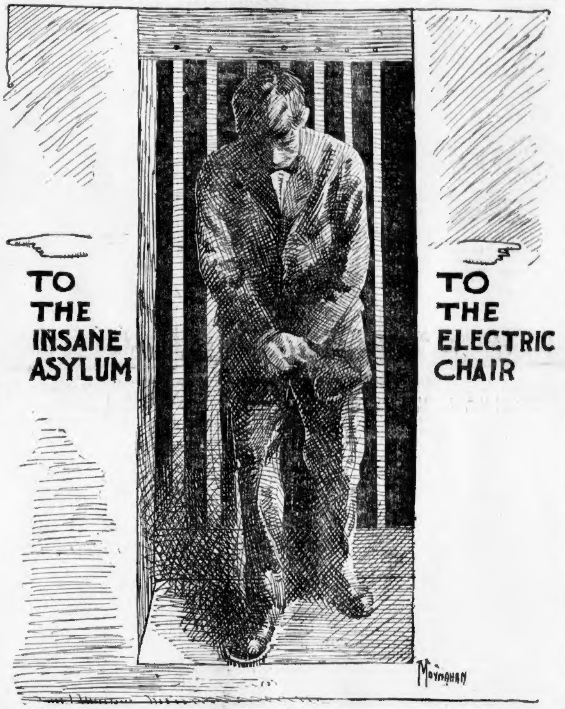
WHICH WAY?



MOTHER HERE TO AID DORR

The mother of William A. Dorr, accused of the murder of George E. Marsh of Lynn, is in or near Boston, and is making arrangements to defend her son, who is on his way from California, in the custody of Lynn detectives. She has consulted Melvin M. Johnson about counsel in the case. It had been reported Mr. Johnson would represent Dorr, but this is incorrect. Mr. Johnson made this statement today:

"I shall not represent Door in any shape or manner at his trial here. But I may help his mother in procuring for him responsible counsel in Essex County. I would do this because of my sympathy for his mother, who is broken-hearted."

Dorr is expected to reach Lynn on Saturday. O. B. Parkinson, lawyer, of Stockton, California, asked Mr. Johnson to make legal arrangements to look after Dorr.

According to reports received here, Mr. Parkinson has grave doubts as to whether Dorr will reach Lynn alive, because of the condition he was in at the time Inspectors Kane and Burckes took him from Stockton. Attorney Parkinson said that while the police and several doctors considered the man sane and simply feigning insanity, despite what the physicians had said of the case, he felt certain that Dorr is not right mentally, and intimated that it might be possible that Dorr would be tested for insanity before being placed on trial for murder.

Fight for Orphans of Hoosac Tunnel Victim

NORTH ADAMS, May 9.—Gladys Kemp, ten, and her sister, Lillian, nine, children of Reuben T. Kemp, the Boston & Maine engineer who perished in the Hoosac tunnel wreck two months ago, are the centre of an unusual contest in the Probate Court in which their grandparents are fighting to get possession of them. The death of the father left the children orphans, their mother having died some years ago.

The two orphans are now at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Shirmer, grandparents on their mother's side, who filed a petition in the Probate Court asking for guardianship over the little ones. This is being opposed by Mrs. Dan Freeman, grandmother on their father's side.

The children are heirs to the $1,500 life insurance policy left by their father, and will also be interested in the claim presented to the Boston & Maine Railroad.

GREEN CROSS IN DEATH MYSTERY

NEW HAVEN, Ct., May 9.—The New Haven police would like the name of a man who went through life with a mysterious green cross tattooed on his left wrist.

If they can get this information, they will know the identity of the man who was found shot dead in the Whalley avenue woods with a revolver by his side.

Examination of the clothing gave some clues. But when the body was examined closely, the police were startled to find on the left wrist the figure of a cross, not only tattooed into the skin, but tattooed in green ink.

The case is now called that of "The man with the green cross." It calls to the minds of the police and of others investigating the matter some of the Conan Doyle stories, like "The Sign of Four" and other wierd conceptions.

That Sherlock Holmes, the great detective of Dr. Doyle's brain, would revel in a subject marked in such striking manner is freely remarked by the local officers.

In the pockets of the man's clothing were found:

A silver nail clip.
Rosary beads.
A ball bearing.
Bunch of keys.
Black wallet.

In the wallet and in pockets was a total of $500 in bills. Two hundred dollars of this was in new bills, neatly bound together with bands bearing the name of the First National Bank of Manchester, N. H.

GOVERNOR DENIES HE HAS MADE UP MIND AGAINST RICHESON

BULLETIN.

Governor Foss today made this statement on the Richeson case:

"The reports that I have decided not to refer the petition for the commutation of Richeson's sentence of death to life imprisonment are absolutely false. I have not yet come to any decision in the matter. I am still awaiting the report of Dr. Briggs, who at my request has made an examination of Richeson as to the latter's mental condition."

Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, the noted Boston insanity expert, today makes his report to Governor Foss on Clarence V. T. Richeson, sentenced to die in the electric chair in ten days for the murder of Avis Linnell.

Dr. Briggs has made a careful study of Richeson in his cell in the Charles street jail. He has talked to him and has observed him while Richeson was unaware of the espionage.

THE REPORT OF DR. BRIGGS, IT WAS LEARNED TODAY ON THE BEST AUTHORITY, WILL BE THAT RICHESON "IS NOT A SANE MAN."

Upon this report, it is expected, Governor Foss will call a special meeting of the Council and urge that body to commute the death sentence of Richeson to life imprisonment.

But the Council has made up its mind, practically, in the matter, as was indicated by the statement of its executive secretary, Edward S. Hamlin, who said it was the general opinion of the members that Governor Foss would take no action in the Richeson case.

COUNCIL MAY NOT INTERFERE.

The Executive Council consists of nine members including the Lieutenant-Governor. This body is normally against capital punishment by a small majority. But in the case of Richeson, it appears, the members have made up their minds not to interfere.

Forced Edmands to Act.

It became known today why M. Grant Edmands has furnished the financial backing for the fight for Richeson's life. According to a statement made by one closely connected with the case, Miss Violet Edmands, who was engaged to be married to Richeson, and who is wealthy in her own right having inherited a large amount from her grandmother, told her father that unless he went to the aid of Richeson, she would defend him with her money.

It was said Mr. Edmands did not desire the appearance of his daughter in the case and in order to prevent it agreed to do as much as money could for the confessed murderer.

Sister Prevented Move.

Richeson would today be in a cell in "murderers' row" at the Charlestown prison instead of his comfortable room at

ACCUSED GIRL FORGER'S STORY

Miss Mary F. Shields of No. 19 Union street, Watertown, the nineteen-year-old stenographer accused of passing two checks on Boston department stores, said today that she had used the checks to accomodate a woman friend of hers. She denied that she knew the checks were bogus, as the police allege.

Miss Shields is suffering from nervous break down at her home. She was bailed by her father in $200 after she had been compelled to wear prison clothes at the Charles street jail.

"I didn't know anything was wrong with the checks," said Miss Shields today at her home. "When I was working as a stenographer, a woman friend had an office near where I was. She would come in to see me. She asked me to get a check cashed for her that amounted to $10. I wanted to be accommodating, so I took it to the Old Colony Trust Company on Court street and had it cashed.

"I did not sign the check. I only took it to the bank. I never went with her to supper or the theatre. That is all wrong.

"Then I did not see her for some time, and she came again to ask me to get a check cashed for her and that I could go and buy a hat which she thought that I ought to have. So I bought a hat and gave her back the change.

"When I cashed the $12 check I gave the money all to her, but when I went to cash the $8 check she told me to get a hat, and I did, and gave her back the change.

"I did not know anything about the checks. I thought she was all right."

HACKETT TRIAL T O BEGIN IN OCTOBER

AUGUSTA, May 9.—Mrs. Elsie Holms Raymond of Poland will be tried for the murder of Mattie Hackett at the October term of the Supreme Court in Kennebec County, according to an official statement issued here. No action will be taken to procure a change of venue in order that the woman may have an earlier trial, as was suggested by Frank A. Morey of Lewiston, her counsel, when Mrs. Raymond was first taken into custody. A petition for bail is pending.

RICHESON CHEERED BY FAILURE TO TAKE HIM TO DEATH HOUSE

PRISONER WILL STAY AT CHARLES STREET JAIL UNTIL FATE IS DECIDED.

The object of Miss Richeson's conference at the State House Tuesday was not learned until today. The grief-stricken sister went to the Chief Executive, under escort of counsel, for the express purpose of asking that her condemned brother be not transferred until after the petition for commutation had been passed upon.

Miss Richeson also made an appeal for clemency, but she placed special emphasis on the request that Richeson be kept at the jail as long as possible. It is said Governor Foss gave her his word that part of her plea would be granted; hence the announcement at the jail that the prisoner would not be transferred for the present.

There is every indication that a reprieve will be granted to Richeson. A stay of sentence which calls for execution in the week beginning May 19 undoubtedly will be rendered necessary in order to give the mental experts a chance to finish their observations and submit reports.

This delay is suggested by the fact the members of the Executive Council do not look for any special meeting, the fact that Richeson's father and brothers and sisters have been advised that there is no need for their presence in Boston just yet, and, most significant of all, the fact that Attorney John L. Lee has agreed with Attorney William A. Morse not to return to Boston until after Governor Foss has given a decision on their petition for commutation.

Trip to Death Cell Postponed.

Richeson was greatly cheered today when he learned that Sheriff Quinn had decided not to remove him to the Charlestown prison, where he would be placed in the death house. Richeson has dreaded the death house, it is said, almost more than the chair.

According to the order of the court, when Richeson was sentenced to die in the week beginning May 19—a week from next Sunday—the prisoner was to have been moved to the Charlestown prison today.

But the sheriff has decided not to make the removal until the Executive Council has decided on the question of a commutation of the death sentence. The report that Dr. Briggs will make to Governor Foss will be so detailed and authoritative the friends of Richeson believe it will result in saving the man's life, in spite of the fact that the council refused to commute the sentence of Silas N. Phelps, whom the Governor tried to save.

Sheriff Quinn told a reporter of the AMERICAN:

Hold Richeson in Jail.

"I shall keep Richeson here till his fate is finally decided whether that be in a day or two or not till next Wednesday. The Council meets regularly then, and I expect they will be called upon at that time to decide."

Notwithstanding the stories that came from the State House to the effect that Governor Foss had practically decided to take no action, Richeson's counsel are confident that the Governor will ultimately act favorably upon the petition.

Governor Foss was visibly impressed by the array of evidence that was presented him with Richeson's plea for commutation. He devoted several days to the careful perusal of the testimony, and then, without the knowledge of Richeson's lawyers, he assigned Dr. Briggs, recognized throughout the country as one of the most expert students of mental disorders, to make an examination of Richeson.

Dr. Briggs' examination of the prisoner was made after an expert portrait photographer had made several pictures of Richeson in the Charles Street Jail. The pictures were made at the personal request of the Governor, and the examinations by Dr. Briggs were also made at the behest of Governor Foss.

Report All Hope Gone.

Because several members of the Executive Council were curious to know if the Richeson matter was to be presented to them and because some of them asked Governor Foss about it and received replies that could be construed as negative, the report was circulated that the Governor had decided not to refer the petition to them.

At the meeting of the Council, Governor Foss made no mention of the Richeson case, and at once the rumor spread about the State House that he was going to remain silent and let the law take its course.

Added weight was given the story when Councilor McGregor stated he did not anticipate the matter would ever come before the Council. Then a few minutes later, Lieutenant-Governor Luce remarked to the Governor:

"I wish to go to my farm in Maine for a ten-day vacation, do you suppose it will be safe?"

"Yes, safe enough," replied the Governor, adding, after a slight pause, "of course we can send for you if it is necessary."

The Governor is strongly adverse to capital punishment, but he has stated that he would refer no case to the Council unless he believed in its justice. If he refers the Richeson case to the Council, it will be because he favors commutation.

The present Council is strongly adverse to commuting the sentence, but the Governor believes that if he can show the Council that Richeson is insane they might vote for commutation.

When Richeson is taken from the cell room which he has occupied since the day he lacerated himself, unusual precautions will be taken.

Richeson himself retired last night apparently with little apprehension of what the morrow might bring. He talked as usual with Harry Butts and spoke pleasantly to his guards, but he did not once refer to the significance of today. However, he fully realizes that unless the Governor intervenes, his days are numbered, and it is peculiarly significant that he appears to be more cheerful and in better health than at any time for the past month. He makes no attempt to conceal his hopefulness.

Richeson was allowed to read the daily papers. He read the sworn affidavit of Mrs. Louie E. Brittain, in which she alleged that Richeson was a Mormon elder, and his first and most forceful comment was:

Calls Stories Lie.

"That's a damnable lie!"

Richeson was not alone in his judgment of the accusation of Mrs. Brittain. Mr. Morse was indignant, and termed her charges an "outrage on common decency." He insisted that the story was made out of whole cloth and was wholly false, and said he had proof to that effect.

John L. Lee, who is at present at his home in Lynchburg, Va., ready to start for Boston the moment he learns that Governor Foss has taken official action on the matter of the petition, wired:

"I have never before heard of such an intimation. In my judgment it is an absolutely unwarranted falsehood."

Mr. Lee is intimately acquainted with the members of the Richeson family, and since the arrest of Clarence V. T. Richeson he has traveled all over the South and the West in search of records of the young man's peculiar habits or idiosyncracies. He has spent considerable time in Liberty, Mo., where Mrs. Brittain claims Richeson first joined the Morman organization, but he never heard of his client being a member of that faith.

Joseph M. Kickham, superintendent of the Intercolonial Hall, in Roxbury, said today that an "Elder Richeson" attended the Mormon meetings held in that hall for a period of two years, up to the time the hall was discontinued as a meeting place about a year ago. He said he did not know the Elder's first name nor whether or not he was Clarence V. T. Richeson.

A committee, consisting of John H. Whitesides, Lawrence W. Richards and Leslie H. Van Dyke, elders of the Mormon Church, made sworn affidavit before Mr. Morse that Richeson was never connected with their society, and from Salt Lake City, Utah, C. W. Penrose, second counselor of President Joseph F. Smith of the Mormon Church, branded the allegation of Mrs. Brittain as false and denied that Richeson was in any way connected with the Mormon Church.

Mrs. Brittain today before a meeting of the Boston Evangelical Alliance at Tremont Temple presented evidence which she said would prove Richeson was and is a Mormon, despite persistent denials.

"I declared Clarence V. T. Richeson was a Mormon," said Mrs. Brittain, "and I stand ready to prove it. I do not intend to remain silent and be called a liar, as I have been called by the Mormon elders."

The revelations in connection with the Richeson case came as a great shock to his former congregation of the Immanuel Baptist Church in Cambridge. The crime has hung over the church like a depressing shadow, although regular services have been mantianed.

The congregation meets tonight to select a successor to Richeson—a proceeding that will be doubly solemn coming as it does only ten days before their former pastor is sent to die in the death chair.

INSANITY EVIDENCE SECURED BY COUNSEL WAS READY FOR USE

The report of Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, to be made to the Governor today, to the effect that Clarence V. T. Richeson is "not a sane man," only voices the argument which has been presented from the beginning by those who sought to defend Richeson.

After the arrest of the accused, and before his confession, evidence was unearthed which tended to show that in Richeson's family there had been traces of a form of insanity. Already it was planned to prepare an insanity defence when the trial should occur.

Attorney John L. Lee said at that time: "There is abundant evidence which would tend to support the contention of insanity. There are peculiarities among Richeson's ancesters, and peculiar actions of the man himself. We could collect a hundred persons to testify to the occasional strange 'fits' to which the man was a subject."

When Richeson confessed to the crime, many of those who had been his friends, fell away. Many others remained equally stanch in his defense, and to these the hypothesis that the man was insane found ready acceptance. It was strengthened by his act of self-mutilation that seemed to indicate a terrible chaos of mind and a distortion of the mental processes.

Got Insanity Evidence.

Within the past two months, Attorneys Lee, William A. Morse and Dunbar have been busy gathering evidence of the prisoner's insanity. Attorney Lee made a trip to the West and to Richeson's home in Virginia, securing a mass of affidavits dealing with the whole history not only of Richeson's own life but of the Richeson family for years back. In Missouri, where Richeson attended college, he collected a number of affidavits as to freaks of conduct observed when Richeson was a student there.

Attorney Morse and Attorney Dunbar spent their time in and about Boston. Attorney Dunbar investigated the classmates of Richeson at the Newton Theological Seminary and secured there a number of statements. Attorney Morse was busy in Cambridge and in Hyannis. He also made a trip to New Hampshire.

Mrs. Moses Grant Edmands, mother of Violet Edmands, to whom Richeson was engaged and in whose house he was arrested, made a deposition that the defence attorneys regarded as one of their strongest documents in making an insanity plea.

Mrs. Edmands' deposition began with the very beginning of her acquaintance with Richeson. She told of his first calls at their home, his visits to them in Dublin, N. H., all the details of his courtship, his occasional mention of Avis Linnell and his actions during the days between that girl's death and his arrest in the home of his fiancee.

Had Alienist's Report.

She described in detail the appearance of the murderer while he waited for the sound of the officers at the door, his sleeplessness, his loss of appetite, his gloomy and morose appearance and his conversation.

To support these affidavits, the attorneys for the defence had another, a report from Dr. Edward Blane, an expert alienist, who examined Richeson in his cell.

Dr. Lane's report has not been made public. One councilior is quoted as having said:

"Governor Foss declared that he was not absolutely convinced from Dr. Lane's statement that Richeson was insane. He, the Governor, wished to have a more thorough report, and so called upon Dr. Briggs, his personal friend, and one of the leading authorities on insanity in the United States.

Dr. Briggs was born in Boston, August 13, 1863. He attended the Boston Latin, Chauncy Hall Schools, the Tufts and Dartmouth Medical Schools, and the Medical College of Virginia, graduating from the last named in 1890. Since then he has practised in Boston.

He is a member of the staff and physician to the medical department of the Boston Dispensary, a director of the Puritan Trust Company, a treasurer of the Tyler Street Day Nursery, and a former member of the First Corps Cadets.

Member of Many Societies.

He is a member of the American Medico-Phsychological Society, the Suffolk Medical Society, the Massachusetts Medical Society, American Medical Association, the Boston Medical Library Association, the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, the Bostonian Society, the Old Colony Historical Society of Taunton, the Essex Institute of Salem, the Pilgrim Society, the Missouri Historical Society, the Hancock (N. H.) Historical Society and of the Alpha Kappa Kappa Medical Fraternity.

He is a thirty-second degree Mason and a member of prominent Boston and New York clubs.

Dr. Briggs has won his renown by services in many insanity cases and by articles on auto-intoxication as a cause of insanity. He was a pioneer in recommending hospitals for incipient insanity. His home is at No. 84 Beacon street.

WHO THE MEN ARE IN WHOM RICHESON PLACES LAST HOPE

The Governor's Council, with whom the fate of Richeson rests, is composed of nine members, including Lieutenant-Governor Robert Luce. The other members are Eben S. S. Keith of Bourne, J. Stearns Cushing of Norwood, Edward D. Collins of Boston, Alexander McGregor of Malden, Edward G. Frothingham of Haverhill, Herbert E. Fletcher of Westford, Winfield S. Schuster of Douglas and August H. Goetting of Springfield.

All the members of the Council are Republicans with the exception of Collins, and all were elected at the last State election, except Collins, who was elected by the two branches of the General Court in January to take the place of John Quinn, Jr. Mr. Quinn resigned to accept the appointment by the Governor as warden of the Charles street jail.

What Duties Are.

The Councillors are elected in the eight Councillor districts of the State. Their duties are as follows:

The confirmation of the Governor's appointments.

The removal on the initiative of the Governor of appointed State officers.

The supervision of expenditures of the regular State appropriations and special State funds.

The power, with the Governor, to release from reformatories, Houses of Correction or state prisons any person serving sentence for crime.

The law states that the Governor, "with the advice and consent" of his council may pardon convicts or commute sentences. This includes the commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment. After a person has been saved from the death chair it is possible for the Governor and Council to pardon a prisoner.

Governor Takes Initiative.

There has been a question for many years as to the correct interpretation of the part of the law which says, "with the advice and consent of his Council," as to whether the Governor or the Council should take the initiative in the matter.

But the custom has been to let the Governor have the initiative and Governor Foss and his Council have followed that precedent in the Richeson case. When the Governor refers a case for commutation or pardon to the Council it carries with it the implication that the Governor favors it.

In the case of Charles L. Tucker, electrocuted for the murder of Mabel Page, Governor Guild, after a public hearing and after having received the petitions of thousands to commute Tucker's sentence, declined even to refer the matter to the Council, settling the young man's doom himself.

Attorney for Richeson Awaits Action by Foss

A reprieve is a matter entidely in the hands of the Governor. I don't know what he will do. I am waiting. I do feel, however, that our client will not be transferred to Charlestown until the matter of commutation has been settled. At least, he will not be sent to the State prison until I have been first notified, and I have not yet received such notice.

Mr. Lee will not come back to Boston until the Gobernor has acted. That is settled. It would be needless for him to take such a long journey North. I got a telegram from Mr. Richeson's brother Douglas of Chicago asking if he was needed here, and I told him his presence was not necessary now. This also applies to Mr. Richeson's father. If the Governor decides to refer our petition to the Executive Council, Mr. Richeson's father and the others will come to help him at the hearing. Their presence is not required now.

I intend to have another chat with Mr. Richeson in his cell at the jail today. I don't think there is any truth in the report that Governor Foss, Sheriff Quinn, Prison Commissioner Pettigrew and one or two others had a conference at a hotel last night which lasted into this morning.

The Mormon bubble has been effectively and deservedly exploded. It is too bad to befog true issues by such trash. As I said before, I am simply waiting.—Statement by William A. Morse, the prisoner's lawyer.

"Complexion Secrets Of An Actress"

In a recently issued volume bearing the above title, the author says: "Continuous use of grease paints, rouge and the like had ruined my complexion. My skin was colorless, wrinkled, flabby, coarse and punctured with large pores. In England I heard of the virtues of mercolized wax; my first experience with this marvelous substance convinced me it was more valuable than all cosmetics combined. Now whenever my complexion begins to go wrong I get an ounce of mercolized wax at the nearest drug store, spread on a thin layer of it before retiring, washing it off next morning. The wax, after a few such treatments, seems literally to absorb the worn-out cuticle, when a brighter, healthier, younger-looking skin appears.

"For the enlarged pores, wrinkles and flabbiness, I began using a solution of saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in a half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in this soon relieved the condition most wonderfully."

Warm Greeting for Long Missing Sun

Old Sol Comes Back to Boston, Bashful, but Apparently Here to Stay.

BULLETINS.

May 9, 1912—7:27 a. m.—The sun came out.

May 9, 1912—7:30 a. m.—No, it's gone.

May 9, 1912—7:50 a. m.—Gee, the sun's out again.

The sun came out again today in Boston after nine days' absence. Since it has been gone—goodness knows where—rain, cold, damp, chills have been in our midst. Baseball fans, merchants—everyone welcomed the sun back again today. It came back fitfully, hesitatingly, but apparently planned to stay.

65 AND 57 TO WED.

BROCKTON, May 9.—Mrs. Emma J. Wills, fifty-seven years old, will become the bride of James I. Hyland, sixty-five years, next Wednesday. This will be the second marriage for both.

MISS WETMORE, BRIDE TODAY OF C. S. SARGENT, JR.

Miss Dagmar Wetmore is prominent in society of New York, where her marriage to the son of Prof. Sargent of Harvard took place today.

A number of Boston society leaders went to New York today to attend the wedding of Charles S. Sargent, Jr., son of Professor Charles S. Sargent, the famous horticulturist of Harvard University, to Miss Dagmar Wetmore, one of the most beautiful young women in New York society, in the chantry of Grace Church. Following the wedding a reception was given by the bride's mother, Mrs. James Markoe of New York.

Among those who went from Boston were members of the Sargent family and many friends. Included in the party were Prof. and Mrs. Charles S. Sargent, Mr. and Mrs. A. Robeson Sargent, Prof. and Mrs. Guy Lowell, Miss Alice Sargent, Mrs. S. Van Rensselaer Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Colman, Miss Harriet Robeson, and Mrs. A. Lithgow Devens, Jr., of Milton.

Mrs. Devens is a sister of the bride. Recently Miss Wetmore was a bridesmaid at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cutler. She has one brother, Louis Wetmore of New York.

Charles S. Sargent, Jr., graduated from Harvard in the class of 1902 and is a member of the Somerset, Country, Tennis and Racquet and Metropolitan Clubs, and of the Harvard Club of New York.

AWAY SIX MONTHS, RETURNS WEDDED

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 9.—After being missing from home for six months, Dorothy Widlansky, seventeen years old, gave her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Widlansky, the shock of their lives by appearing at her home, No. 31 North Arkansas avenue. She announced her marriage to a young physician in San Diego, where she has been enjoying her honeymoon while her relatives were spending hundreds of dollars in the search.

BURRIAN, TENOR, HAS CONTRACT IN VIENNA

VIENNA, May 18.—Carl Burrian, the Bohemian tenor, has signed a five-year contract with the Court Opera. He will be at liberty to sing at intervals with the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York.

New East Boston Plant for General Electric

Building Employing 1,200 Men to Go Up at Once—Others to Follow as Needed.

The General Electric Company of Lynn is to erect a large plant to employ 1,200 men in East Boston. The company also plans to increase the East Boston end of the business as fast as possible and are ready to build two more structures as soon as needed. Work will be rushed on the first building so that machinery of the latest type can be installed at once. The plant will be used for the manufacture of incandescent lamps.

A tract of land, containing several acres, on Porter street, has been purchased by the company. The cost of the land was $50,000, and it was bought from the East Boston Land Company.

The General Electric Company operates a small plant now at East Boston, leasing the building and yard. The building plans have not yet been thoroughly perfected, but Manager Fish of Lynn said today that the new building will be a thoroughly modern one and equipped to handle a large business. The rapidly growing business requires more room in East Boston, he said, and the new property is large enough to provide for the erection of at least two more buildings as soon as needed. Work on the first building will be started as soon as the plans are completed.

FIFTEEN HUNDRED CONVICTS FIGHTING MISSISSIPPI FLOOD

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Fifteen hundred convicts are fighting the floods in various parts of Louisiana today. The town of Plaucheville is in the path of the torrent, and is threatened with destruction. Practically all the crops in Avoyelles parish have been destroyed. The Bayou des Glaizes levee, near the great Torras crevasse, has broken and turned into the already flooded sugar country another great volume of water. The break was caused by back water from the Torras and Dogtail crevasses, which are fast widening. The result was the quick submerging of Moreauville, a prosperous town. In New Roads parish vandals in skiffs and flatboats are looting homes from which the owners have been driven. The thieves will be shot on sight.

SHRINERS RE-ELECT RECORDER ROWELL

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—Ernest A. Cutts of Savannah has been elected imperial outer guard by the Imperial Council, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. Dallas, Tex., has been selected for the 1913 conclave. William J. Cunningham of Baltimore succeeds John Frank Treat of Fargo, N. D., as Imperial Potentate. William S. Brown of Pittsburg and Benjamin W. Rowell of Boston were re-elected imperial treasurer and imperial recorder, respectively.

KAISER PLANNING TO FOLLOW FOXHOUNDS

BERLIN, May 9.—The Kaiser has decided to introduce fox hunting in English style in Prussia. He has commissioned the huntsman of the Earl of Fitzwilliam to form a pack, which is now complete and will be sent to Potsdam tomorrow. Prince Eitel Friedrich will act as M. F. H. The country around Potsdam is very favorable for fox hunting.

PREPARE FOR HOT FIGHT OVER G.O.P. DELEGATES

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Both Taft and Roosevelt managers have announced that on May 25 or thereabout they would move national headquarters, get expensive batteries of lawyers, and arrange for the bitterest fight delegates ever held before a national committee.

Senator Dixon, for the Roosevelt forces, will conduct the fight in person. He has already arranged for counsel, but at present is not ready to disclose the names of the legal big guns he will have at his elbow.

Mr. McKinley, who is not an orator himself, will probably send somebody else into the committee room to do the fighting for Taft. But he will remain handy and will assist in the strategy with which it is hoped to snatch victory from defeat.

Fate of 100 Delegates.

The fate of more than 100 delegates will rest with the National Committee. At present the committee is disposed to dodge the responsibility of a decision. This pleases neither Dixon nor McKinley, and as soon as it was learned that the committee might compromise arrangements were made for the migration to Chicago.

It is expected that members of the National Committee will begin to filter into the Illinois capital about a week before the committee meets. There will be a race to get every member first, and the committeemen will be given little peace till they get together as a body.

Both Dixon and McKinley are now busy collecting "evidence" on which contests will be based. Witnesses in great numbers from every State in which there is a contest will be summoned to Chicago at the expense of the factions which need them. Documentary evidence is being prepared by the ream. Few great trials that have held the attention of the country have ever been conducted on such a scale as will be this bitterest political fight in the history of the party.

Work, or Lose Your Jobs.

Every officeholder in Ohio has, within the past twenty-four hours, been notified that he is expected not only to vote for the President in the primaries, but to get out and work for the President from now on.

The President's representatives, speaking, they assert, with full authority, intimate that any officeholder who neglects this high duty need not be at all surprised if somebody neglects to reappoint him when his term is out.

substantial contribution. Charles P. had after a conference with his brother, had decided to help the campaign with a very substantial contribution. Charles P. hand announced that Brother Will ought to be able to renominate himself without any family help. Up to this time he has steadfastly refused to dip into the bank for any campaign funds, although he has abundant wealth.

But the peril of Brother Will is now so manifest that he was reconsidered, and for the sake of the family will permit Brother Will's local manager to shake him down.

HALE CHALLENGES TAFT ON PREFERENCE DELEGATE QUESTION

Failing to receive an answer from General Champlin on the attitude of the delegates elected from the Eighth and Tenth districts, where the preference vote was in favor of Colonel Roosevelt, Matthew Hale, manager of the Roosevelt campaign in Massachusetts, has taken the matter up with President Taft direct.

In a letter to the President, Councilman Hale says:

"It now appears that the voters of the Eighth and Tenth Congressional districts expressed a preference for Colonel Roosevelt, while electing delegates pledged to you. On May 4th I wrote to General Edgar R. Champlin, manager of your campaign in this State, asking him as your representative to make clear his position and yours on the duty of the delegates elected in these two districts. I have not yet received an answer from General Champlin, and the Massachusetts papers supporting you continue to claim for you these district delegates.

"I see that William B. McKinley, manager of your National campaign, is claiming four delegates in Maryland—in spite of the express provision of the Maryland law—on the ground that the voters of two of the Maryland districts appear to have expressed a preference for you.

"In view of the apparently conflicting attitudes of your National and State managers on this important subject, I feel that the people of Massachusetts have a right to hear directly from you whether your forces in this State are going to respect the spirit of our new law or whether your managers are solicitous of the wishes of the voters only in those districts where the voters express a preference for you."

BRYAN ATTACKING HARMON IN OHIO; SUPPORTS WILSON

COLUMBUS, O., May 9.—National politics only simmered in this State today after the finish of President Taft's three-day tour, and prior to the invitation of candidates scheduled to begin their final campaigns here next week. The President will return Sunday, according to present plans, and Monday he will be followed by Colonel Roosevelt. Campaign managers for Senator La Follette have announced that he will make a final tour of the State prior to the primary election, May 21.

In the Democratic ranks there is as much activity, and almost as many candidates are now laying out plans for speaking tours, to concentrate just before the primaries.

William J. Bryan is finishing today a three-days invasion of the State, in which he has been attacking the candidacy of Governor Harmon. At Governor Harmon's headquarters it has been announced that the chief executive is working out his itinerary, which will cover all the points at which Bryan has spoken and also will include the larger cities of the State.

A report gained circulation in the visit of President Taft that Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey also was planning to tour Ohio, although no such official announcement has been made.

Only the Democrats will have an opportunity to show direct preference at the primaries, and the petitions of Governors Harmon and Wilson only have been circulated. Colonel Bryan, in his two tours of the State, has urged Democrats to vote for the New Jersey executive.

Delegates pledged to the various Republican candidates will be voted for, however.

DEMOCRATIC DELEGATES TO DATE

The following table shows the line-up of instructed delegates to the Democratic National Convention, chosen to date, crediting to Wilson the twelve Pennsylvania delegates at large. The sixty-four district delegates of that State are not entered in the table, as the allegiance of many of them is doubtful.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB COMMITTEE MEETS

At a banquet and organization meeting of the membership committee of the new Democratic City Club, the committee organized with Junius T. Auerbach of Brookline, chairman, and George H. Corliss of Boston, secretary. A business meeting of all the committees of the club will be held at the Boston City Club, Tuesday, at 6 o'clock, when the question of a permanent clubhouse will be discussed.

FAMILY OF 12 ALL SUICIDES AT ONCE

BUCHAREST, Roumania, May 9.—A whole family—grandmother, father, mother and nine children have committed suicide in this city. Two of the sons, who were the mainstay of the family, killed themselves on account of financial troubles. Then the others, having stupified themselves with beer, retired to a garret and inhaled charcoal fumes.

SLUMP IN PRICES OF ART TREASURES

LONDON, May 8.—A conspicuous and unexpected slump from the purchase prices of former years marked the first day of the sale at Christie's today of the art objects that belonged to the late Charles J. Wertheimer. The total receipts of the first day's sale were $213,915.

GREEN AND RED BAD FOR PUPILS, SAYS CHICAGO WOMAN

CHICAGO, May 9.—Blue, dark blue and dark green are the colors in which all schoolrooms should be painted or tinted. This is the expert opinion of Marie J. Hesse to the congress of Illinois Mothers and the Chicago School Board. Reds, pinks and blended light tints develop "monkey shines" in the children.

"There is no question about the moral effect of colors," declared Miss Hesse, who is Chairman of the School Improvement Committee of the congress. "Horrible mixtures of pink, green and red demoralize the children and prevent successful discipline.

Dark blue and dark green tend to soothe them. The other colors I have named excite and irritate them."

Miss Hesse is against stagey pictures in schoolrooms. "The picture of 'Washington Crossing the Delaware' has a stagey effect," she said. "He was never in any such position as that, but was undoubtedly helping the other men fight the ice in the river. Don't put stagey pictures on schoolroom walls."

WILEY FAVORS ELLIS MILK BILL

Ex-Representative Myron E. Pierce, counsel for the Milk Consumers' League, has received a letter from Dr. H. W. Wiley, former head of the National Chemistry Bureau, and now health expert for Good Housekeeping Magazine, endorsing the so-called Ellis milk bill, which places the regulation of the milk industry in this State into the hands of the State Board of Health. The bill was vetoed last year by Governor Foss. Dr. Wiley's letter follows:

Dear Mr. Pierce:

I have read the Ellis bill and the Meaney bill, which I believe are now before your State Legislature. I think, by all means, the Ellis bill is to be preferred to the Meaney bill.

While I would like to see an act placing the whole matter in the State Board of Health, if this cannot be secured, the next best thing is the provision contained in the Ellis bill. Whether or not the Ellis bill will prove effective depends on the character of the board which is appointed to fix the standards. If this is the right kind of a board and has the interest of the consumer at heart, the provisions of the Ellis bill, associated as it is with the State Board of Health, could be made highly useful.

I trust that you may be able to get at least as good legislation as the Ellis bill proposes.

I am, respectfully,
(Signed) H. W. WILEY.

WELLESLEY SOCIETY IN ORIGINAL PLAY

An original play, "The Uncrossed Jar," dealing with scenes in Italy in the early Christian era, written by Misses Marjorie Sawyer and Florence Webster, seniors, was a feature of a meeting of the Phi Sigma Society of Wellesley College, which attracted many undergraduate girls to its fraternity house. Miss Gertrude Clarkson '12 played a shepherd, Miss Della Smith '12 was the shepherd's daughter and Miss Mary Colt '13 impersonated a wayfarer. Other characters were taken by Misses Gertrude Schauffler '13 and Dorothy Conner '12.

SUE WEALTHY COMMUTERS FOR HOUSEHOLD BILLS

NEW YORK, May 9.—Even the worm will turn—and the small tradesmen of the towns about New York have decided to give an imitation of a worm. Butchers, bakers, candlestick-makers, doctors, dentists, dressmakers and the like have risen in mass against the millionaire commuters who find it possible to pay great sums for luxuries, but leave their household bills unpaid.

Deputy Sheriff Patrick Finnegan has begun serving in Greenwich alone 189 writs of attachment sent out for the collection of these bills. By the end of the week he hopes to serve 250 writs on Stamford commuters, thirty on New Canaanites, 150 on Norwalkites, 150 on South Norwalkites, 125 on Danburyites, and 100 or more on Bridgeport cottagers. All of the writs are returnable on May 21.

Clark Gives Senator Stone a "Gumshoe"

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A gumshoe resting in candy grass was the centre of attraction at the home of Speaker and Mrs. Champ Clark during Mrs. Clark's weekly "at home."

Inquiring guests were informed by Mrs. Clark that it was placed there in honor of the 64th birthday of "Gumshoe Bill Stone," Senator from Missouri and a close friend of the Clarks.

How Long did your last Pair of Shoes Wear?

THE average "life" of good Automobile Tires is about 4,000 miles.

The average life of $4.00 to $5.00 Shoes is about 1280 hours of Continuous Wear. This, before the Upper leather breaks, or the Outsole wears through.

—Representing about 3 Months' everyday Wear, of about 14 hours per day.

So, — to arrive at the true Cost of average Fine Shoes just divide 1280 Hours (or 3 Months) Continuous Wear into their price.

If you paid $4.00 you will thus find a (pre-repair) Cost to you of about $16 per YEAR.

If you paid less than $4.00, they probably would not deliver three months' continuous wear, on average.

SO—the question every Consumer should ask himself, before buying Fine Shoes, is this:—

—"How much per year will they Cost me for (pre-repair) Wear?"

And, when he has arrived at that correct viewpoint, of Shoe value, he is invited to read the "Indemnity Bond" on a new range of 1912 Regal Shoes.

That "Bond" secures to him, beyond question, a minimum of Six Months Continuous Wear of Outsoles and Upper Leather, without break, — for $4.50 per pair.

This means high-grade Shoe Wear at about half its usual cost, — viz. at 75 cents per Month, maximum, instead of at $1.50 per Month average.

Now if you, Reader, have had enough "Lottery" in shoe buying—

— And,— If you want the same grade of Stylish Shoe Service at $9.00 per year, as you have paid $16 per year for,

—Investigate the new 1912 range of Regal Bonded "Six-Month" Shoes.

DOORS OPEN AS TITANIC SANK

LONDON, May 9.—Lives were sacrificed unnecessarily when the Titanic sank because partly filled life boats did not return to pick up survivors, it was brought out in the government inquiry in the Scottish drill hall today. Night watchman Johnson said his boat did no go back, though it was unfilled, and could have done so.

John Dillon, a trimmer, at first swore the watertight compartment doors were closed at once, but afterward testified four doors were opened by order of the first engineer and never shut again.

MISS JESSIE CLARK, WHO WILL BE BRIDE OF FRED BRADLEY

After keeping their engagement hidden for three years, Miss Jessie A. Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Clark of Hingham and Fred Bradley, son of Peter B. Bradley, millionaire head of the Bradley Fertilizer Company, have let their friends and relatives into their secret. The result is that the pair was given a dinner and dance last night at the Clark home, Fearing road, Hingham.

According to friends, the couple first met at a social event four years ago, and the warm friendship soon ripened into love, and they became engaged. As they were unwilling then to carry out their vows at the altar, they decided to keep their plighted troth to themselves until they decided to take the step. The wedding is expected to take place soon.

AEROPLANE SHOW IN NEW YORK HAS MANY NEW TYPES

NEW YORK, May 9.—The first international aeroplane exhibition opens today in the New Grand Central Palace, to continue to May 18. In addition to the products of American inventors, foreign types of machines will be staged. It is the aim of the Aero Club of New York, which controls the exhibition, to bring under one roof the various machines of domestic and foreign design, so as to enable the visitors to the Palace to see the astonishingly rapid advances made in the field of aeronautics. The show is patterned after the successful ones held in London and Paris.

WAITERS TELL OF FINE SYSTEM

NEW YORK, May 9.—The striking waiters and the management of the Hotel Belmont remained firm in the position they took when the strike was called Tuesday evening.

Although the strikers complained principally against Victor Pearl, the head waiter of all departments, and specified some things he should not be permitted to do, they also voiced their protests against the general treatment afforded them at the hotel.

Their chief source of complaint is the fine book. One of the union officials, J. Elster, the business representative, displayed a copy of this book. It showed a list purporting to be fines imposed on the waiters from April 12 to April 19. It contains about forty pages, and there are about a dozen fines entered on each page. Following are a list of the offenses for which the waiters were mulcted, and the amounts imposed:

Dropping a spoon	$ .50
Dropping a demitasse spoon	.25
Waiter drinking cup of coffee in pantry	3.00
Fine for two pantrymen who failed to stop waiter	1.00
Twenty-five minutes late	5.00
Speaking to each other	1.00
For smiling in dining room	1.00
Failure to place finger bowl on table	.25
Dropping a piece of silver	.25
Failure to be on proper station	.25

GIVE RECEPTION TO REV. DR. NAZARIAN

Pastors of many churches of Greater Boston spoke at a reception to the Rev. Dr. A. H. Nazarian, pastor of People's Temple, and Mrs. Nazarian in the chapel of the church.

On behalf of the women of the parish Mrs. Nazarian was given a bouquet of roses.

All That Is Earthly Is Subject to Pain

—King Solomon.

The victims of Rheumatism all tell the same story; they have sore, inflamed muscles and stiff, aching joints; they have no ambition or strength, and get nervous and irritable, which is not to be wondered at. We realize how much they suffer.

"Nurito," a prescription free from Opiates and Narcotics, will banish all aches and pains, and limber up those sore and inflamed muscles, or your money will be refunded.

We realize that there are worthless and dangerous remedies which are sold as cure-alls by the help of manufactured testimonials, whose object is to extract gold. "Nurito's" purpose is to give relief, and is compounded exclusively as a specific remedy for those only who suffer from Rheumatism, Sciatica or Neuritis.

Convince yourself. Go to the Houghton & Dutton Co. to-day, get a $1 box of "Nurito," the remedy that produces results.

You can feel it working.

SIEGEL CHARITY AWARDS MADE

The Free Home for Consumptives receives $200, millions of votes were cast and over 100 charities have benefited by the distribution of Henry Siegel Company.

A committee of three, consisting of men prominent in charitable work in Massachusetts, has awarded cash amounts to the list of charities printed below.

Customers were invited to vote for any charity in New England in which they are interested. Sales slips are used as votes, the customer writing the name of the charity on the reverse side and sending it to Henry Siegel Company, or depositing it in a special ballot box for that purpose in the firm's building. As every 10-cent purchase is good for one vote, the charities received several million votes in the aggregate.

BIG NEW PLANT IN EAST BOSTON

between Los Angeles and San Francisco and have never owned them. We have to accept their denial at its face value, and under the circumstances if the Southern Pacific should establish a Boston service it would be with the hope of securing a new and profitable field rather than to spite anybody.

Seek Central Docks.

There is nothing to keep us out of Boston if we should happen to wish to go there, and could find adequate docks. By adequate docks I mean a pier centrally located, so that it could be reached by passengers and at the same time have rail connection.

It's just a matter of business policy. I have no doubt whatever that if your port directors can show the Southern Pacific how we can increase our earnings by extending our lines to Boston we shall be glad to do so.

Nevertheless, you must realize that a steamship company with no Boston interests will hesitate to go there while Boston-owned steamship lines do not operate from their own port.

I may be wrong, but I believe that the Clyde line, Mallory line, Ward line and Porto Rico line are all controled through the banking house of Hayden, Stone & Co. of Boston. Of these the Clyde alone has a Boston service. How about that?

The Southern Pacific officials do not conceal their pleasure at the compliment implied by the invitation to Boston from Mayor Fitzgerald and from the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange. Director of Traffic Spence was in Washington, but Assistant Director W. S. Basinger upon reading the letters of the Mayor and the resolutions of the Exchange said:

Praise Boston Spirit.

You Boston people seem to be very much in earnest and alive to the interests of your port. It will be gratifying to the high officials of the road to learn that we are wanted in Boston.

I myself have not heard of the proposed extension of the line. That is a question of administrative policy that we would not hear of until an official announcement was made, if it was intended.

The boats of the Southern Pacific which sail from New York to New Orleans are the finest coastwise steamers afloat. They are built in all respects like trans-Atlantic liners, and are finer and more luxurious than all but the more recent of the big liners.

DROPS DEAD AT POST.

PROVIDENCE, May 9.—While on duty in the engine room of the Joy Line steamer Tennessee, Samuel A. Tinkham of Fairhaven, Mass., chief engineer of the boat, was stricken with heart failure and died instantly.

Prefers Jail Here to Freedom In Germany

Stowaway About to Be Deported Shows He Was U. S. Army Deserter.

"I would rather be in jail in the United States than free in Germany. I am a deserter from the United States Army. Send me to prison for deserting. Don't send me back to Germany."

Carl Bogner, a young German, made this statement to the immigration authorities as he was about to be deported today to Germany on the Hamburg-American Line freighter Bethania.

He was arrested Monday as a stowaway on the same vessel which arrived from Hamburg Monday.

"Two years ago I enlisted in the United States army," he said. "Six months ago I was stationed at Fort Riley, Kan. I was anxious to see my mother in Germany and applied for a furlough to go to Germany. They refused me a furlough, so I deserted."

The immigration people communicated with the Quartermaster's Department in Boston and Bogner's story was confirmed. He will be sent to Fort Leavenworth.

KING MARVELS AT FEATS OF BRITAIN'S NEW AEROPLANE

LONDON, May 9.—When Englishmen read in their papers of a wonderful new machine, both aeroplane and hydroplane, which had been invented by one of their countrymen, acquired by the navy, and was to be shown at the naval review by King George in Weymouth Bay, the news seemed too good to be true. The reports, however, were not exaggerated, and it is now declared Great Britain has the most remarkable and satisfactory machine of its kind in the world, that other powers have been left behind in the race for supremacy, and that the British plane has already performed feats altering the conditions possible in naval warfare. The waterplane is described as having "the powers of an albatross to fly over the water, float upon the water and rise again." It was piloted by Commander Samson, R. N. He flew to the royal yacht, settled on the water under the King's eyes, disembarked a naval officer he had brought as a passenger, and delivered a letter for the amazed King.

MORSE WILL SAIL FOR HOME ON MAY 18

The letter was written from Bad Nauheim. It is expected that Morse will land at New York and proceed at once to the old homestead, where his sister, Jennie R. Morse, is keeping house and caring for Morse's two children by his first wife.

MRS. AMES AIDS DANCE FESTIVAL

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Rarely, if ever, has any one person done so much in an educational way for the people of a town as Mrs. Oliver Ames, Sr., has done for North Easton. An idea of the great work which she carries on so quietly may be gleaned from the entertainment to be given there tonight by the pupils of the Oliver Ames High School for the benefit of the gymnasium fund of the school. There will be dances, drills, pantomimes and all sorts of interesting events. There is to be a folk dance in costume and gymnastics by the boys.

Among the folk dances will be the Irish dances, the "lilt," the "jig" and the "clown," done by twelve boys and girls; old English dances, the Morris Jig and "Bacca Pipea" by six boys, and old English country dances, "New Castle" and "None Such." For each dance the costumes are exact reproductions and many have been imported for the occasion.

Give Spanish Number.

"The Highland Fling" will be done in costume by twelve young grammar school girls, and a Swedish Vingarker and Weaving Dance by Mrs. Maud Scanlon. A Russian Mazurka will be done by eight boys and girls and a Spanish Segindilla, one of the most beautiful of the dances, will be given by twelve girls, graduates of the school.

The Castinet girls include Louise Ohmert, Josephine Hanson, Florence Holland and Grace Roche.

The Fan girls will be the Misses May Carr, Rena Carr, Mildred Spooner and Teresa Kelly.

The Mantilla girls will be the Misses Alice Maglincey, Hannah Sullivan, Lucy Sullivan and Dorothy Sylvester.

Mrs. Maud Scanlon, who has the dancing in charge, will give a Hungarian dance, "Czardan and Frischla."

Illuminated club swinging will be done by twelve high school girls dressed in National colors.

Last but not least comes the Indian pantomime arranged true to customs and rites of Indians and produced under the supervision of Signor Romeo, ballet master of the New York Hippodrome.

Indian Pantomime.

The principal parts will be taken by Marcus Leroy, who will play the part of "Osseo," the medicine man; Warren Lincoln, who plays the part of "Keneu," the chief of the Newtons; George Cotter as "Tak-Ne-Anaw, chief of the Senecas. Miss Louise Ohmert will impersonate "Ionetta," the Indian princess. The Indian maidens will include Grace Harlow, Lucy Sullivan, Louise Drake, Alice Maglincey, Katherine Flynn, Florence Holland, Marie Parks.

Miss Dorothy Sylvester will take the part of the "Spirit of the Waters." The Nymphs will be the Misses Grace Roche, Josephine Hanson, May Carr and Rena Carr. The Indian braves will be George Shepard, Merle Keith, Niles Goward, Raymond McEvoy and Russell Mack.

That the affair will be one of the most brilliant and artistic ever witnessed in North Easton goes without saying.

KHEDIVE'S BROTHER STUDYING AMERICA

NEW YORK, May 9.—Prince Rustom, brother of the Khedive of Egypt, arrived here determined to see all there is in the United States in three months. He is thirty-six years old, and says he has been trotting round the globe since he was six years of age.

No one on board knew he was a prince, as he was listed simply as Rustom Bey. From this country he will proceed to Australia, the only land in the world he has not visited.

WED WIDOW OF HIS OWN SON AT 63

TOLEDO, May 9.—John C. Baird, sixty-three, of Zanesville, has married the widow of his own son, Mrs. Mary H. Baird, thirty-six. The laws of Ohio do not prohibit such a union. "Both of them shall surely be put to death. They have wrought confusion, their blood shall be upon them," says the Bible. John C. Baird says: "We can see no harm in it. I always liked my son's wife, and since his death and the demise of my first wife the affection has ripened into love."

DR. HAMILTON MAY BE BISHOP

The Rev. Dr. Franklin Hamilton of Boston is mentioned in Minneapolis dispatches today as one of the probable new bishops to be chosen at the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The episcopacy committee of the church, which has been holding executive sessions daily and which politically is one of the principal bodies of the church, in that it recommends the number of bishops to be elected, is said to be deadlocked on the number who will be superannuated at this session of the conference. On the number who will retire depends to a great extent the number of new bishops to be chosen. It is expected the new bishops will number eight or ten. Among those mentioned are Edward S. Ninde of Providence, R. E. Jones of New Orleans and John W. Butler of Mexico City.

NAHANT MAN ASKS PART OF $40,000,000

William J. Snow of Nahant claims he is one of the heirs to an estate of $40,000,000, which was left by Samuel Churchill of Newfoundland, who died many years ago. Snow says that he has been trying to clear up the family history for twelve years and has received information which convinced him that he is one of the rightful heirs. Churchill died intestate, and his business was developed by a firm which became very successful. Snow says that a meeting of the heirs will be held shortly.

Switzerland Gives Us Great Lung Remedy

While every country in the civilized world has been doing its share to wipe out the dreaded scourge, Consumption, none has been more successful in its research than that little mountainous nation of Switzerland.

Switzerland has become prominent in this fight by the production of a remedy called Sirolin, which is now being used throughout Europe by eminent specialists with remarkable results in treating Consumption.

Sirolin is the creation of several well-known physicians, who have devoted a great part of their lives to the fighting of this disease, and judging by the results it has produced their efforts have not been in vain.

Sirolin has lately been imported into this country in large quantities, as its fame has come across the water in a very persistent way.

If you suffer from Consumption, or weak lungs, you will profit by getting further information about Sirolin, from the Sirolin Company, 228 West Broadway, New York City.

All leading druggists are recommending and distributing Sirolin with considerable success.

HEARST FIGHT FOR PACTS WINS

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The aggressive campaign made by the Hearst newspapers for reciprocity with South American and Central American republics has already borne fruit in the active effort of the State Department to bring about reciprocity agreements with the more important of these nations. It was learned today that negotiations to this end were set on foot by Secretary Knox on his Caribbean tour, and that they are now being energetically pushed by the State Department.

While the President was discouraged by the failure of Canadian reciprocity, his Secretary of State was not. It is directly on the line of the campaign laid down by the Hearst papers immediately after the Canadian election that the department is now acting.

Before Mr. Knox departed for the Caribbean, the department had formulated plans for reciprocity treaties, as a basis for his diplomatic negotiations in the capitals of the Central American republics.

These will be the first to be invited to join the United States in reciprocity agree- South American republics with which the department will treat.

The department holds the view that "Pan-Americanism" and "reciprocity" are synonymous terms. But it is believed also that an attempt to bring about reciprocity with all the southern countries at one time would be doomed to failure. Therefore, Central America has been selected for a beginning.

Mr. Knox's negotiations were opened in Guatemala. His recent absence has interrupted the plans for an agreement with this nation, but they will be resumed immediately on his return. The Guatemalan minister to the United States will conduct negotiations for his country, having been clothed with full power to act. Mr. Knox has already had conferences with him in Washington.

There is every reason to believe that the next government to be dealt with will be Nicaragua. Officials of the State Department are disappointed by the news from the Senate that action had been deferred on the Nicaraguan and Honduran treaties. Efforts to ratify these treaties will be renewed.

HEALTH BOARD TO AGAIN BAR USE OF MILK "DIP" TANKS

The Boston Health Board will again prohibit the use of the dip tank for milk in stores and the shopkeepers will be compelled to cover all other foodstuffs sold in bulk, if the regulations now being drafted under the new law are approved by the State Board of Health. These are only a few of those that are being incorporated into the regulations.

The health board appointed from the civil service lists two additional sanitary inspectors, making ten who have been appointed within a week. The new men are Samuel M. Schmidt of No. 9 Allen street, West End, and John F. Linehan of No. 27 London street, East Boston. They will get $1,000 a year each.

LINER DAY LATE AVOIDING ICE

A day late because of a detour to avoid ice, the Cunard liner Franconia docked today with 1,751 passengers. Captain C. A. Smith took no chances, and the Franconia was headed 200 miles south of the southern course.

The company put on six extra boats and five life rafts.

John V. Dittemore, director in the Christian Science Church, a passenger, was pleased with the outcome of the Eddy will suit in New Hampshire. "I confidently expect a victory in the Massachusetts courts," he said. John O'Callaghan, secretary of the United Irish League, was another passenger, with his son and daughter. Other Bostonians were: Mrs. Ogden Codman of Beacon street, Mr. and Mrs. F. Merriam and daughter, Mrs. Henry Porter Priest, sister-in-law of the late John T. Priest, city clerk; Charles Skintelberry; G. Herbert Windler, golfer. There were 1,600 immigrants aboard.

ROOM FOR 602,335 HENS TO SCRATCH IN RHODE ISLAND

PROVIDENCE, May 9.—Rhode Island, with its 1,250 square miles of territory, in which there are 1,652 farms whose average size is a trifle over a quarter of a square mile, harbors 602,335 fowls, according to the United States Census Bureau. These chickens, whose value, according to the census, is $482,015, produce annually 2,894,081 dozens of eggs. The eggs are estimated—also by the Census Bureau—to be worth $848,527, all of which goes to show that there is money in chickens. The Census Bureau didn't estimate that it would take a housewife, spending two minutes on each egg, nearly 237 years, with twelve-hour workdays to beat them all.

EX-PREMIER BALFOUR IN SUBMARINE TRIP

LONDON, May 9.—Arthur J. Balfour, the former prime minister, who already has experienced the delights of flying, by making a trip in an aeroplane at the Hendon aviation grounds, has now tried a trip in a submarine. He went under in the D 3 and after the dip expressed himself as very much pleased with under water evolutions.

TESTED RECIPES FOR BEAUTY SEEKERS

FOR OILY, STICKY HAIR—The severity of soap when used for shampooing is shown by the lifeless, "stringy" condition of the hair, and its persistent use will eventually ruin the healthiest head of hair. A teaspoonful canthrox dissolved in a cup hot water is enough mixture for a pleasing, satisfying shampoo. This is mild and gentle in action, and as a cleansing agent and vigorizer of scalp and hair-roots is unequaled. After rinsing, the scalp is sweet and clean, and each strand of hair dries evenly, with a rich gloss and silky softness.

IF EYEBROWS ARE THIN—Rubbing a little pyroxin on eyebrows with forefinger causes them to come in thick and glossy. Thin, stubby eyelashes will grow long and thick and have a delightful curl if pyroxin be applied at roots with thumb and forefinger. Be careful and don't get pyroxin where no hair should grow.

RELIABLE WEIGHT-REDUCER—No harmful results follow the use of parnotis to remove fat, and when the right weight is reached the treatment can be stopped without fear of the fat returning. To prepare the treatment, dissolve 4 ounces parnotis in 1½ pints hot water. A tablespoonful of this before each meal is the dose. With the parnotis treatment the flesh is left firm and the skin entirely free from wrinkles.

FOR AGE-MARRED SKINS—Frequently powder and greasy creams are responsible for age-marred, unlovely skins, and unless this condition is corrected early the skin will fade and grow rough and wrinkled. An excellent lotion for bringing back the youthful charm and smooth, velvety texture of the skin can be made by dissolving 4 ounces spurmax in ½ pint witch hazel (or hot water), then adding 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. Apply this spareingly and rub lightly until dry and it will impart a delicacy of tone and a fineness of texture delightfully amazing.

Develop Your Bust

50c. Package FREE to Any Woman Who Wants a Beautiful Figure.

Women need no longer be humiliated and embarrassed because they are thin, flat chested and not developed, for science has found a simple way to give the beautiful curves of a perfect figure. To prove this, let us send you free of charge a 50c package that will show you how easily the bust can be developed from two to seven inches, and become full, plump and firm. This discovery, that is of such vital interest to all thin women, is the result of long study and investigation by one of the leading women physicians in New York State, who, in seeking to overcome the defects in her own figure without the use of "pads" or forms, discovered a happy combination of tissue-building elements that increased her bust some four inches, made her arms round and shapely and her neck and shoulders plump and symmetrical.

This prescription of Dr. Catherine Kelly's is a real discovery on far different lines from the ordinary figure developing treatment, and this explains its almost uniform success.

Dr. Kelly not only gained a beautiful form by her own prescription, but used it successfully with many of her patients. Women, this is a personal message from a physician of your own sex, and all we ask is the opportunity to show you without any expense on your part, that Dr. Kelly's Form Developer will give you a perfect figure, beautiful complexion and improve the general health. Send the little coupon above and 10c for expenses, and a 50c treatment will be mailed at once in plain package. Write us to-day. DR. KELLY MEDICAL CO., Dept. 27 E. C., Buffalo, N. Y.

SOCIAL CENTRE MOVE GROWING

The appointment of Ralph Hawley as assistant supervisor over evening and continuation schools and the plans now being considered by the Boston School Board for installing four or five social centres in school houses in various parts of the city has aroused much interest, especially in those districts where the experiments will probably be tried.

Many citizens of Roxbury who have of late come together in a united plan for the improvement of that district are making every effort to have one of these centres placed in a Roxbury school.

They believe that a schoolhouse opened up for social and recreational purposes outside of regular school hours would be of inestimable value in counteracting the present evil influence of certain dance halls and unwholesome cheap vaudeville performances.

The activities in Roxbury, should the School Board conclude to favor the district with a social centre, would be patterned after the Opportunity Clubs that have been successfully running this Winter in the East Boston High School under the management of Mr. Hawley, supported and directed by The Women's Municipal League of Boston.

The Children's Welfare League of Roxbury held an enthusiastic meeting this week, attended by 125 residents of the district, who discussed the possibility of using a schoolhouse as the East Boston High School has been used. All kinds of social clubs and educational classes were proposed that would be absolutely democratic in form of government. Mr. Hawley was applauded when he stated that in a social centre there is absolutely no place for religious and race lines. He also pointed out that the greatest value which comes from the Social Centre Clubs is the opportunity they afford the young people to learn self-government and self-discipline.

L EMPLOYES HOLD FIELD DAY SATURDAY

The Boston Elevated employes will hold a field day Saturday at the old American League ball grounds on Huntington avenue. There will be track and field events, and a ball game between the Milk street general offices and the wires and conduits department. Keen interest centres in the special match race between Ralph Donoghue and Bill Hersey of the auditor's office in the 100-yard dash.

WOODRUFF ON STAND TODAY

Tender scenes which were alleged to have taken place on the coast of Maine last Summer were described today in the testimony given in the Dedham court in the suit for divorce brought by Mrs. Lewis S. Woodruff, Brookline society woman, against her husband, a Boston broker.

The courtroom was crowded with society people and other curious spectators.

Lewis S. Woodruff, whose cross libel against his wife is being heard with his wife's suit, went on the stand. He told of a bathing incident which took place August 8, 1911. This testimony was in line with his charges against his wife that she had been to attentive to Dr. Robert Souther, a prominent Beacon street physician. In her suit Mrs. Woodruff named Mrs. Frances P. Givernaud of Cambridge.

Woodruff says he first met his wife when he was a student at Williams College. He used the name of Miss Margaret Atkinson, a trained nurse, repeatedly, saying she and his wife had been very friendly.

On one occasion at Ogunquit, where the Woodruffs had a cottage, according to the broker his wife stood with her arm about Miss Atkinson's waist, and asked him:

"Don't you think Margaret has a beautiful figure?"

Woodruff said his reply was that he didn't think he was qualified to judge.

FRANCE TO JOIN IN PANAMA FAIR

PARIS, May 9.—The French Permanent Committee on Foreign Expositions feted M. H. De Young, the vice-president of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, at the Hotel Continental. The committee is composed of the heads of all the most important manufacturing corporations in France and presidents of chambers of commerce.

The committee asked for full information as to the scope and rules of the exposition, and Vice-President De Young amply satisfied their curiosity. After making the explanations Vice-President De Young asked if France would accept the invitation to participate, and Senator Dupont promptly replied:

"She will. Our sentiments on this point are unanimous, and we assure you the government will soon act officially."

SEVEN DROWNED AS LAKE BOAT CAPSIZES

FOX LAKE, Ill., May 9.—Seven persons, six of them Chicagoans, were drowned in a storm that swept Fox Lake and capsized the boat in which they were seeking to cross the lake. The dead are: Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hansen, Chicago; Jack Hoefer, Chicago; Lewis Truscke, Chicago; George Russell, Ingleside, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Hume, Chicago.

J. HAZEN HYDE GIVES DINNER TO HERRICK

PARIS, May 9.—A dinner and reception was given in honor of the American Ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, by James H. Hyde. One hundred guests were present, among them the Minister of War, Alexandre Millerand, Viscount Davanel, Fernand Chapsal, permanent director of the Ministry of Commerce; Alfred Croiset, dean of the Sorbonne; Maurice Croiset, head of the College of France, and the American Consul-General, Frank A. Mason.

Pleads For Return of Stolen Heirlooms.

Miss Smith, Bank Stenographer, Loses Mother's Deathbed Gifts.

"If the person who took my rings knew how they have wounded me, knew how I value them for sentimental reasons, they would return them," said Miss Genevieve M. Smith, stenographer, employed at the Federal Trust Company, Devonshire street, today, as she told how some woman had taken two rings, one of them a twin stone diamond, valued at $175, from the washroom of the bank.

"They were given to me by my mother on what she thought was her death bed and they were family heirlooms, passed from one generation to another. I know I was careless, but I only left them on the stand for a minute, and I rushed right back when I missed them.

"The rings were worth perhaps $200, but I valued them at many times that amount to me. Yes, I would pay a liberal reward and ask no questions if they were returned. When I missed them I never thought for a moment that they would be gone when I returned. The only persons who use the washroom are women employes of the bank and women depositors.

"I can hardly believe that one woman would inflict so much suffering upon another knowingly. It has made me almost ill. Please aid me if you can to find them.

"I do hope the finder is an honest person who perhaps was tempted for the moment and whose conscience will finally compel her to return them."

MRS. SAGE LAUDS SUFFRAGE PARADE

NEW YORK, May 9.—The Emma Willard Association, made up of alumnae of the Troy School, where she studied, held a "Mrs. Russell Sage Day" in the Hotel Manhattan. Mrs. Sage was not able to be present, but her letter denied reports of her serious indisposition. One part reads:

"The suffrage parade was inspiring, and while all wrongs may not be entirely righted by votes for women, there will be many steps upwards."

STRIKERS PARADE BY LOWELL MILLS

LOWELL, May 9.—Five hundred strikers paraded through the streets today near the Merrimac Manufacturing Company's mills, but did not attempt to molest the operatives who have remained loyal to the company. After the parade the strikers posed while a photographer took their pictures. The mill is running despite the strike, and the places of many of the strikers have been filled, Agent Wadleigh says.

METHODISTS TAKE UP AMUSEMENT TOPIC

MINNEAPOLIS, May 9.—Interest of the delegates to the Methodist General Conference now centres in the debate, scheduled to be held tomorrow before the committee on state of the church, on the amusement question. It is generally believed among the delegates that the recommendations made by the committee, lifting the church ban on amusement, will be adopted by the conference, and the action tomorrow is regarded as practically final on this question.

You Must Kill the Germs to Remedy Sore Throat—because it is a germ infection. We speak of "catching" sore throat—and we really do—inhaling millions of vagrant malignant germs when we breathe.
Deep in the throat cavities germs thrive lustily in their work of infection. The throat becomes dry and inflamed—swallowing a painful operation—you have sore throat or something worse—for you must remember that sore throat is often the forerunner of serious infectious diseases.
You may gargle until doomsday without getting at the seat of trouble—the liquid cannot penetrate into the folds of the throat where germs hide. At best, gargling casually washes the surface of the tonsils—it cannot remain long enough to be of real benefit.
Wulfing's Formamint
THE GERM-KILLING THROAT TABLET
is a wonderful germ destroyer and preventive of germ infection. It succeeds where gargles fail—reaching the seat of infection. It is a pleasant-tasting tablet, sucked like candy, setting free a powerful, yet harmless, germicide that mixes with the saliva and is gently washed over the membranes of the mouth and throat—reaching every nook and cranny—killing the disease germs—and clearing the way for quick recovery. Formamint is soothing and grateful where there is irritation or soreness. It is the natural way—the sure way.

GIRL ATHLETES WIN APPLAUSE

A basketball game between the teams from the Posse Normal School of Gymnastics and the New Haven Normal School of Gymnastics, won, 9 to 3, by the former, was the feature of a demonstration of gymnastics and athletics at the Arena.

The demonstration was given under the auspices of the Posse Alumni Association in the interests of a students' loan fund, to be available for worthy young men and women who need financial assistance in obtaining an education in any of the special schools in Boston.

The clever and daring "stunts" of some of the fair gymnasts thrilled the audience.

Among the participants were delegations from the Lynn Y. M. C. A., Boston Y. M. C. A., Brookline Municipal Gymnasium, Boston Young Women's Christian Association, Boston Y. M. C. U., Posse Gymnasium and the New Haven Normal School of Gymnastics.

There were relay races between the Y. M. C. A., Brookline Gym, Swedish Gymnastic Club, Boston Y. M. C. U., Boston Y. M. C. A., Norwegian Gymnastic Club and Posse Gymnasium. Brookline Municipal Gymnasium team won.

The wand drill by the women's class of the Brookline Municipal Gymnasium, led by F. Leonard Mason, proved one of the most interesting features of the night.

Boston Men Not Old Maidish

Congressman Murray Says So

Noted Authority Advises Detractors to "Stick Around" Sometime and Find Out Mistake.

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Who in Boston should know better what kind of men there are here than a man who represents them in Washington?—Congressman Murray—he surely would know all about them.

If they ARE really and truly old-maidish, as Mrs. Jessamy Bret Harte Steele declares they are, or if they are selfish, as that delightful Southern girl, Miss Betty J. Dunaway, says they are, Congressman William F. Murray is sure to know all about it. So to him I flew for information.

CONG. W. F. MURRAY

Congressman Murray is such a busy man and such a hurried man and so hard to find that when you finally do locate him and approach with your nice little speech all ready, the first thing he does is to scare it all out of you.

But he has some rattling good ideas of things when you get at them.

"Who says Boston men are old maidish?" he demanded indignantly. So I told him all I knew about it. He seemed to think I was to blame for the whole miserable business and for a while I thought there'd be a sudden and terrible ending to the interview. But joy! He laughed!

Any one who thinks that had better stick around some time and see. That surely is a new one on me. I never knew Boston men were so well behaved before and they must be exceedingly well behaved in order to be dubbed old maidish."

Then I guess he began to think of some of the fellows he knows. There was a fair-away look in his eyes as though he were remembering some particular occasion were the "old maidish" men were "not present" and he laughed again.

Congressman Murray's Laugh.

That's a great laugh of the congressman's. Its jammed full of genuine mirth that gurgles right up from the heart. The only trouble with it is that you never know whether he's laughing with you or at you. But its always with you in one sense, because when he laughs, even if it is at you, you can't help joining in the chorus.

"I have all the respect in the world for old maids," he declared, and he looked at me as though he wasn't quite sure whether I had crossed the "danger" line or not. But he arranged to be on the safe side at any rate.

"As for Boston men being old maidish, its the most absurd thing I've ever heard and I've heard one or two pretty harsh things said about them. I've heard some of them called Indians and just about everything but that, and that certainly is the last straw. They'll hardly survive that shock.

"I think I know pretty thoroughly the men of Boston, and, believe me, I can't say that about them. They may be a little more conservative than the men of most other cities, but, by jove, they're a pretty fine, red-blooded, progressive lot."

I thought he was puffing up a bit too much, so I reminded him of the accusation that they were selfish.

Selfish? Certainly Not.

"Selfish? Certainly not! There are more heroes among the men of Boston to the square inch than in any other city in the United States, and I know whereof I speak. You say that selfishness is the reason for so many bachelors in Boston? In most cases its unselfishness. It seems to me the selfish fellow doesn't deliberate about asking a girl to share the most forlorn sort of lot with him. He goes and marries her, and for both it's a life sentence to hard labor. The fellow who is less selfish works along, always hoping that he will have something worth offering the girl of his choice, and has the highest ideals as to what he shoud offer her. If he is poor he is sensible enough as well as unselfish enough not to want to take a girl possibly from an easy position where she earns a good salary and by marrying her compel her to live possibly on half the amount she has been accustomed to living upon, and in many cases take from her her precious and much prized independence. That to me shows a man more selfish than to have him remain a bachelor. Don't you think so?"

For the moment I did, but after thinking it over later I didn't feel so sure about it.

A Wide-Awake Lot.

"Boston men only half awake? Don't you let them tell you that. Just let anyone try to get away with anything and you'll see that they're a pretty wide-awake lot. They take in more at a glance than most people would in a ten-minute gaze, only they don't make any fuss about it. They're an observing lot and you have to be pretty wide awake to let as little get by as they do. I think a Congressman is in a pretty fair position to judge whether they're wide awake or not, too. They're pretty square dealers, at any rate, these men of Boston, and they demand a square deal in return. Its simple justice which so many people take for selfishness in the Boston man.

"Life's pretty much a game of give and take anyway, and the average Boston man is as particular about not taking more than his share as he is about not giving more than his share—in a business deal, but where real charity is concerned, you can't beat the Boston man in the race to the front. They give intelligently rather than recklessly, but when they're sure the cause is the right and all-deserving one, then there's no limit to their un-selfishness.

"I'd rather represent the men of Boston than of any other city I know, simply because they do give a square deal and expect one in return. Would old-maidish men do that? Doesn't that just prove that they're not old-maidish or selfish or half awake?"

FINDS AGAINST HEINZE IN SUIT

F. Rockwood Hall today filed his report as master appointed by the Supreme Judicial Court in suits of F. Augustus Heinze, Carlos Warfield and M. M. Joyce against Almon D. F. Adams and numerous brokers and money lenders in Boston, who were also joined as defendants. He finds in favor of the defendant. If the report is upheld by the court, Heinze will lose $500,000 of securities which he pledged with Adams to secure loans of $300,000.

The suits were brought in October and November, 1909, and after the pleadings had been completed were referred to Mr. Hall, who has devoted nearly two years to the taking of evidence.

The foundation of the suits was in the Summer of 1908 when Heinze, who was pressed for money entered into negotiations with Adams to procure loans. Heinze had ten separate transactions with Adams, and borrowed in the aggregate about $300,000, for which he gave as security 30,000 shares of Davis-Daly, 8,000 shares of United Copper, 27,500 shares of Ohio and 225 Ohio 6 per cent. convertible bonds. Adams parted with all securities except 1,200 shares of Davis-Daly and 10 shares of Ohio. He also sold 125 of he Ohio bonds. The remainder of the collateral which was found in the possession of some of the defendants is held by a restraining order issued by the court.

After Heinze discovered that Adams had sold his collateral he sought to hold the other defendants liable in damages on the ground of a conspiracy between Adams and them.

The master finds that Adams was practically a bankrupt when he began his dealings with Heinze, but hoped to be restored to a good financial standing as the result of profits he expected to make out of Heinze. Previous to that time Adams had had numerous dealings with some of the defendants from whom he repeatedly obtained small loans at 2 per cent. a week and 1 per cent. a day for loans for a week or less.

Mr. Hall finds that while Heinze was a very large individual owner of the stock and bonds, nearly all the certificates pledged to Adams stood in the name of others than the plaintiff for the purpose of concealing the fact that it was his stock that was being pledged. Furthermore, all the pledged certificates, whether standing in Heinze's name or not, were in the form of "Street Certificates," negotiable by delivery, and of themselves giving no information as to the true owner.

Mr. Hall also finds that at the time Heinze borrowed the $300,000, the market value of the securities which he pledged as collateral was $591,750.

Mr. Walter I. Badger, counsel for Heinze, will make a strong fight before the Supreme Court to have the report of Mr. Hall disallowed on the ground that his conclusions are inconsistent with the evidence offered by the plaintiff.

BIBBER DEATH MORE PUZZLING

LEWISTON, Me., May 9.—Like a criminal of fiction that requires the detective ability of the superman to discover, is the mysterious person who shot and killed John W. Bibber, the Beau Brummel bachelor of Lewiston, two weeks ago.

A wierd and haunting shadow has been thrown over this city as a result of the strange crime. So baffling has it proven to the detectives who have striven to solve it that the public have begun to shrink from the silent streets of the night as though there might be lurking in some shadow a man or woman bent on a repetition of the cunningly devised tragedy.

For, be it known, that it is believed here that the person who shot down Bibber is prominent in this city; that he walks the streets daily, mingles with our citizens, chats of the commonplaces of life, even discusses the crime itself—and then saunters away, laughing because he is the master criminal of the world, the one person who has taken human life and so covered his tracks as to defy detection.

Few women are seen in the streets at night and none unattended. Many of the residents have bought pistols and when they go about their business they are prepared to use them at the least provocation. Even the attendance at the theatres has fallen off plainly, the managers say, because of the fright.

While the friends of the murdered man are planning to solve the mystery and bring the assassin to the bar of justice a new and unexpected clue has fallen into the hands of the authorities.

One of the prominent men of the city has been charged in an anonymous letter with the crime. He promptly turned the letter over to the police. The police are satisfied that the man who received the letter is innocent.

But they would like to have an interview with the writer of the letter. This much of the letter has been made public:

"You know (name of receiver of letter) that I saw you kill John Bibber and you had better confess."

This letter was turned over to Detective Adams of the Pinkerton department and for two days he has been looking for the sender. The letter was written on a piece of stationery bearing a stamped heading. This had been partially torn off, but the printer of it has been found. The postal authorities will be called into the case if it comes under their jurisdiction.

FIRST WIFE TO REIGN AT ASTOR VILLA

Mother of Astor Heir Is to Resume the Place in Society She Lost.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, mother of William Vincent Astor, who made a flying trip to this country as "Mrs. John Astor," following the death of Colonel John Jacob Astor in the Titanic disaster, will take up her domicle at Beechwood, the Astor home in Newport, next month, as "Mrs. Astor." She will preside over that villa, now the property of her son, with Vincent and his sister, Alice.

Discussion of the provisions of Colonel Astor's will was rife in the "Four Hundred" today, with opinion divided on some features.

No document of its kind ever aroused so much interest, ever caused so many and such varied expressions of opinion as the will in its bearing upon the future of his youthful widow.

Meanwhile, Mrs. John Astor finds it imperative to return to England immediately within a week or ten days, to give directions concerning certain business matters. She will also arrange for the maintenance of her English home until next Fall. Vincent Astor hopes to be able to make a brief visit there with his mother.

As soon as these pressing matters can be concluded, Mrs. Astor will return to New York with her son. She will then be installed in the Newport place as absolute mistress. Hereafter she will be "Mrs. Astor" to her friends.

Miss Alice Astor will accompany her mother abroad and return with her. Vincent will make his home in Newport during the Summer, but will take no part in the social affairs of the famous resort. Several times weekly, when business demands, he will automobile to New York city.

It is explained that Mrs. Astor does not intend to abandon her English home. She will return to London for the fashionable season there, which ends in July, and she will then come to Newport.

Mother May Be Guardian.

One important matter to be decided upon before the departure of Mrs. Astor concerns the appointment of a guardian for Vincent to serve until he reaches legal age, November 25 next. He is said to have urged his mother to act. But it may be that owing to the demands of her business and social interests Mrs. Astor will recommend the appointment of a friend in close touch with the details of the vast fortune. The application will be made within the next eight days.

Special cable dispatches from London from an intimate friend of Mrs. Astor confirm the announcement in the AMERICAN that Mrs. Astor will take up here the position of recognized social leader of the Astor family. They also state that she will spend nine months of each year in the United States and three months at her new home in Grosvenor Square, London.

Vincent Astor conferred for hours with the trustees and executors of the vast estate he has inherited. It is understood the youthful heir is working out a well considered plan for the brief term during which he will have a guardian.

When he dropped business, Vincent devoted several hours to his mother and sister. Hereafter the ten-year-old girl will be known to friends of the Astor family as Miss Alice Astor. Heretofore she has been called Muriel, but always within the home she was called "Alice."

The fact that Vincent's mother is to return to America with the recognized social prestige that this position commands was the chief topic of discussion in society circles. Although in seclusion, Mrs. Astor received quietly the congratulations of many old friends and favorites, who are delighted with the decision.

Sisters Not Mentioned.

The young widow of Colonel Astor enjoyed an auto drive on Fifth avenue. This was the first time that the girl bride, now doomed to perpetual widowhood under penalty of sacrificing a large income and a beautiful home, has endeavored to appear outside her home except upon a mission of mourning.

The Colonel's widow is soon expected to announce that in future she prefers to be known as "Mrs. John Jacob Astor." Heretofore she has been greeted as Mrs. Madeline Force Astor. She has not announced her plans for the Summer. It is not believed she will remain at the town house during the warm weather.

Some wonder is expressed that Colonel Astor omitted any reference in his will to his sisters. They are Mrs. Orme Wilson, Jr., of this city, of whom the Colonel seemed especially fond, and Mrs. George Oglesby Haig of London.

The provision for the young widow naturally is the topic of greatest interest. Within a few brief months Mrs. Madeline Force Astor has become, first, the most romantic, second, the most tragic, and now the most problematical figure in the history of the Four Hundred.

Causes Much Comment.

A year ago she was a debutante of Brooklyn, whose coming out had attracted little attention. Today she is the widow of one of the world's richest men. But his will provides that she receive the income from only a small part of his vast fortune and that she will receive the income only on condition that she does not remarry.

Several men and women of note give their opinions of the matter.

By Mrs. Robert Francis Cartwright, director and officer of the New York Federation of Women's Clubs.

As Colonel Astor provided liberally for his widow in a pre-nuptial arrangement, and as he left her $100,000 in cash and the income of $5,000,000 during her lifetime, and a great house, I cannot say that I think she is in need of much of this world's goods.

My sympathies are with the first Mrs. Astor in that she is deprived of the home where her children were born and where she lived as the wife of Colonel Astor.

I look upon the marriage of any young woman to a man so much older than herself as a marriage whose first object was one that concerned financial arrangements. If so, then the will is as it should be.

By Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, writer and expert on questions of economics and equal suffrage.

The taking away of her income and house from Mrs. Astor in the event of her remarriage seems to me a most unfair thing to do.

I know that in some of the Western States, it is unlawful to make such a provision in a will. These States are right to take that attitude, and New York should be brought under the same laws. In this case I should say all the widow has to do to carry out her husband's plan is to marry the son. The entire estate then would remain in the family as he wished it to.

Upholds Colonel Astor.

By Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett, officer of the National Women's Suffrage Association.

I think Colonel Astor did the best thing possible for his widow. The only class I feel deserve my pity are the millionaire class—the rich who have seldom the opportunity of genuine human companionship and sincere friendship. This will make it possible for the widow to actually find out the worth of possible husbands if her desire is to remarry.

I do not believe in money entering into the marriage partnership. That smacks of the medieval, from which we are all trying so hard to get from under.

Unwittingly, perhaps, Colonel Astor left his wife in a far better position so far as her future happiness and worth are concerned than most people realize.

Should Respect Will.

By the Rev. Charles A. Eaton:

I think under the present social con-

I do not think, as some people seem [illegible] will deprive his widow from remarriage. If it does [illegible] has not enough [illegible] qualities to [illegible] Colonel Astor [illegible] marriage and [illegible] complications, perhaps.

"Not Fair to Widow."

Even Surrogate John P. Cohalan, who is conservative in speaking of great wills, says:

"Practically everyone will agree that it is not fair to Mrs. Astor that at the age of twenty years she would be bound through the provisions of a will to [illegible] widow [illegible] to suffer a tremendous [illegible]

"[illegible] natural state [illegible] of [illegible] young people for whom the State has [illegible] stronger than the w[illegible] of their forbears."

When Madeleine Force was married to Colonel John Jacob Astor a large amount was settled on her outright. That is placed at $5,000,000. Some say $10,000,000. Others go higher. But it is accepted as not less than $5,000,000. In consideration of this pre-nuptial settlement, the bride-elect waived her dower rights. That is, she gave up whatever claim she might have as a wife or widow, to her husband's estate.

Waiver Hard to Break.

Records show that, when a woman waives her dower right under seal and is of sound mind when she does so, it is extremely difficult to upset this waiver in the courts, even though the wife gave up her rights for a small consideration.

But whatever money was settled on her in the marriage agreement will be hers, whether she re-weds or not. That the hand of Madeleine Force Astor—young, attractive and rich—eventually will be sought is taken for granted. But that such a remarriage should entail heavy loss of income to her is regarded as unjust by many. It is admitted Colonel Astor in drawing his will had no thought of early death in mind and meant only to provide generously for his wife. But this does not make the situation any more just toward the widow so those declare who look into the future and consider the years ahead of young Mrs. Astor.

Sorry for Young Widow

Surrogate Cohalan was asked what he thinks of the restrictive clause affecting the bequests to young widows. He replied:

"One may have a personal view, but may not be able to make that view his official view on account of the fact that every decision in matters such as presented here is subject to review by higher courts, and those courts have settled the precedents for most problems. But this is one without precedent.

"I know well enough what my personal view is. It is that we have been working away for 120 years or more making laws in this field we thought would do justice, just as they worked away for 120 years or more to make ships that would not sink. And in both we have failed equally.

"All the courts have decided that a husband may impose any restriction upon his widow, as to her sharing his legacy after remarriage that he wishes to. At the same time the courts have decided that no man can hang up rewards or offer punishments that are to be inflicted upon his children for any failure to remarry. The law evidently aimed at establishing the freedom of young people to marry in spite of any restrictions from a previous generation.

"While in the mass the law does justice, every day we meet individual cases where the law fails as it fails here. The view may be easily held that Colonel Astor in making the will never dreamed what a situation it was to bring about.

Estate Practically Entailed.

"If that question should be brought up in a contest, then the whole matter of the influences that caused Colonel Astor to write his will as he did would of course, be open to inquiry. Mrs. Astor has a perfect right to contest the will under the general provision that any person who

Boys Brave Rain and Storm to Keep in Condition for Coming Races.

In spite of the heavy rain the crews from Cambridge High and Latin, Rindge Technical and Brookline High took practice spins from the B. A. A. [illegible] yesterday. The work was light on account of the adverse conditions, each crew rowing up the river for ten minutes [illegible] turning.

The first and second crews of Cambridge Latin were the first out. Both practiced starts and then took a row up the river. The first crew, composed of Flynn, Harrington, Whittemore and [illegible] with Baker as coxswain, appears to be the best on the river. All four men are heavy and have a strong, long sweep.

Captain Wesley Coleman was [illegible] rowing a fine oar and has all his men working in good order with [illegible]. Tom Harrington is [illegible] to good advantage this season [illegible] this year [illegible] ever before. [illegible] and Flynn are [illegible] the followers of the crews pick [illegible] as the favorites.

The Cambridge Latin second crew is doing good work and is as [illegible] as any of the other second shells. Foster is rowing stroke with [illegible] in seat [illegible] and Holt at bow. The boys row well together and use a steady, strong stroke.

The Rindge Technical first crew did not show up very well in the workout, but previous to this the boys rowed in good form, so the coachers were [illegible] Hoyt in seat 1 [illegible] the boat properly and this [illegible] caused the slight wobbling.

The crew is a fairly strong combination and before the races are [illegible] develop into a favorite for [illegible] place. McDonald is rowing a good oar at stroke. He has a steady sweep and the others in the boat follow him.

H. R. Coleman rows a good stroke at 3, while Sawyer at 2 and Hoyt at 1 are both fast and steady, and with a few more workouts should show good improvement.

The second crew is strong with Coleman at stroke, Maddix [illegible] Helen [illegible] at 2 and Burse bow.

Brookline High lost two good men out of the first shell yesterday [illegible] and Cooley being down [illegible]. In the workout Fillebrown, the [illegible] went in Cooley's place at bow and Croorg took Cooley's place in seat 2.

The new combination worked out well and with more practice the new men should develop into the same class as the two old men in the boat.

Newton is holding down seat number 3 in fine shape and Captain Bentley is showing a good hand at stroke. C. Clark is coxswain.

The "fans" who saw the first real workout say Jack has lost nothing of his cleverness and speed.

COLUMBIA CREW ON WAY TO ANNAPOLIS

NEW YORK, May 9.—The Columbia Varsity rowing crew left today for Annapolis, Md., for the annual race with the Middies on Saturday. Coach Rice, who accompanied the crew, said that there would be light practice tomorrow. Although retarded by weather conditions the Columbia eight has developed extremely well and will make a good showing this season.

RED SOX HOPE TO TAKE SERIES

Hughey Jennings will make another attempt to even up with the Red Sox today. High thinks he can get away with it, but Charley Hall, whom Jake Stahl has picked to do the pitching this afternoon, thinks otherwise. Hall was never in better condition and since the Tigers are not up to their best fighting form just now Hall is confident that he will beat them, giving the Red Sox the rubber game of the series.

The Tigers and Red Sox will have their third session tomorrow and Jake Stahl believes that he can take all three games. He counts on "Buck" O'Brien performing in "Buck's" old style tomorrow.

After the Tigers depart come the St. Louis Browns. What is in store for the Browns nobody knows. The poor old fellows have a rugged road to travel at their best, but the Red Sox have frequently been generous to them. The Bostonians have gone directly from triumphs over the Tigers to defeats at the hands of the Browns. It seems to be overconfidence or generosity.

American Olympic Fund $50,000 Short

NEW YORK, May 9.—With the date of sailing of the American Olympic team only a little more than a month off, the American committee declares itself, in an announcement last night, still $50,000 short of the sum needed to send to Stockholm the strongest team possible. Various scattered contributions come in daily, among these announced today being $50 from the University of Michigan and $25 in small individual subscriptions.

To reach the sum desired, however, the committee looks for $1,500 daily from now on until sailing, June 14.

RILEY'S COLUMN

IT is almost useless to try to revive the pugilistic game in Boston. Dishonor killed the sport throughout the country, and particularly in Boston, just as dishonor killed horse-racing. Pugilism is intrinsically a good, manly sport, and it always has a chance to revive because the people want it. But it cannot be revived unless it is shorn of the dishonor which dragged it into the mire so effectually that it is blackened for years to come.

* * *

AFTER a season of rest, the game had a chance to "come back" in Boston. But the same old gang of sharks were wide awake and were after it the minute it made its reappearance. If there can be no honor attached to the fight game, it should at least would have kept free from suspicion the first good scrap in months. From prudence alone the sharks might have waited for the game to get well in motion before starting to plunder.

* * *

BUT the first good bout was the signal for something to happen. The Crouse-Houck bout had all the earmarks of fraud. It was so raw, in fact, that there is no excuse that can free it of suspicion.

* * *

THE ordinary observer of the bout Tuesday night at the Boston Arena saw a good quarrel, but it was all one sided, plainly in Houck's battle. The ordinary "fan" made his own decision, and the fact the referee decided differently only made the referee look like a [illegible] worse and did not disturb the merits of the bout. The real disastrous effect of the referee's decision was felt by the bettors.

THOSE who wagered their money on Houck never had a chance. Crouse was the two-to-one favorite and the "wise" ones collected their bets. The men who bet on Houck were robbed. It was the "raw-est" affair of the kind that the writer has ever seen, and he has witnessed many a "raw" deal in nearly twenty years' experience in the sport game.

* * *

SOMEBODY in Boston started the report that Johnny Kling was to retire as manager of the Pilgrims and that President John M. Ward was to take his place. Nobody could run down the source of the report, but it reached the newspaper offices. President Ward vehemently denied it in Chicago today. "It isn't fair to Kling to circulate such a report," he said. "John has given perfect satisfaction. The only result that the spreading of such a report could have would be to make it more difficult for them team to strike its real gait."

THIS is a sensible declaration. It would be folly to change Pilgrim managers, and President Ward does himself credit by saying so flatly. The Pilgrims have won as many games—if not more—under John Kling as they would under any other manager. Kling has done more with his material than he was expected to. Besides having done wonders with what he had, he is one of the steadiest, most capable field captains in the business.

* * *

THE Pilgrims are higher in the race than their most ardent followers anticipated they would be at this stage of the game. They are [illegible] successful simply from lack of championship pitching material. A pitching corps is a most difficult commodity to obtain. There are no [illegible] ones on the market. Kling will have to develop the [illegible] has [illegible] while keeping his eyes on the coming generation of big [illegible] twirlers.

No Speaker Trade Says Red Sox Head

"Nonsense, ridiculous," asserts President J. R. McAleer of the Red Sox when questioned concerning a deal which a New York story said was pending between the Red Sox and the New York Americans to swap Hal Chase for Tris Speaker.

The rumor had it that the star first baseman of the New York Americans was to come to Boston, that the peerless Tris would adorn the outfield of the New York team and that Jake Stahl would manage the Red Sox team from the bench.

"You can brand that report as a fake, pure and simple," declared President McAleer when seen at the American League Grounds today. "Whoever originated that yarn was suffering from a brain storm. There is no truth in it whatever.

"Why, I wouldn't let Speaker go for any player in the country. He is too valuable to our team. Then what would I do with Jake Stahl? Is it likely after spending an entire Winter inducing Jake Stahl to return to the fold, that I would let him go?

"Chase is a valuable man. He is probably the best first baseman that ever played the national game. But Stahl is also a player of sterling merit. And when he gets back into the game he will play the game of his life.

"Stahl's weak ankle is mending rapidly, and as soon as it is strong enough, which should be almost any day now, the 'fans' will see him back at his old job covering the first sack."

Expect Auto Records At Rockingham Park

New automobile records should be created when the pick of New England's speed kings race at Rockingham Park Memorial Day, according to [illegible] the noted pilot who twice won the Vanderbilt cup. Grant, at the wheel of the Alco car with which he won the Vanderbilt cup, reeled off fifty miles the other day at Rockingham and when he finished declared it was the fastest mile dirt track he had ever driven on.

Grant's entrance into the management of the races has stimulated big interest in the race meet. Yesterday a half dozen entries were forwarded to Business Secretary "Jim" Kerr. Fred Tolars, who owns a ninety horsepower Chadwick, has entered this car. He will probably drive it in the free-for-all amateur race, while Leland Hersey of Dorchester will drive it in the professional events.

Walter Clapp has entered a Berkshire in four events. The car was built originally to race in the Indianapolis Speedway races and is capable of grinding out about eighty-five miles an hour. It is probable that Harry Grant will have this mount.

AMATEUR CHAMPIONS IN SPECIAL BOUT

Johnny Brassill has matched Charles Askins, National 148-pound champion, to meet Joe Lavelle, the New England 158-pound title holder, in a special bout at the amateur show of the North Cambridge A. C., which is scheduled to take place on May 20. Both of these boys are sterling performers and are sure to put up a slashing bout.

COUNSEL CLASH ON STEEL STORY

NEW YORK, May 9.—A sharp tilt between Richard V. Lindabury, chief of counsel for the United States Steel Corporation, and Jacob M. Dickinson, former secretary of war and head of the government's array of legal talent, marked today's session of the hearing in the customs house [illegible] the federal suit to dissolve the alleged trust.

George A. Cragin, general sales agent of the American Steel & Wire Company, was under examination by Judge Dickinson at the time. The witness was asked if he [illegible] March, 1912, in the postoffice building [illegible] stated to H. E. Colton [illegible] Clark that he had a talk with President James A. Mr. [illegible] it was astounding that a government attorney should confront a witness with testimony that witness was supposed to have given before a grand jury and particularly when the witness in question was the government's own.

Judge Dickinson replied that he regarded Mr. Cragin as a hostile witness to the government and added that the government was forced to go to employes of the companies under examination to get the necessary information upon which to base proof that they are conspirators in restraint of trade.

Judges Gray, Buffington and McPherson in the United States District Court at Trenton today denied an injunction except as to the American Steel & Wire Company, to restrain the United States Steel Corporation [illegible] its subsidiary corporations from destroying books and papers needed as evidence in the suit of the government to dissolve the Steel Trust. The opinion says no proof was shown of the intention of the defendants to destroy books or papers.

A Story of Japanese Plotters—Love, Mystery and Tragedy Based on the Great Play Now Running in New York

THE ARTIST IS LED ON BY THE WILY JAPANESE TO TELL OF HIS SECRET SORROW

"I remember your friend, Professor Bruck, said you were interested in the Japanese," said Joshakawa. "How did that come about first—may I ask?" Lindener turned to him with a magnificent wave of the hand. "A mere trifle," he said, "a woman."

By J. W. M'CONAUGHY

Copyright, 1912, by American Journal-Examiner.

"AGAIN I am honored!" said Tokoramo, with a bow. The older man ignored the salutation and advanced until he could place a hand on the young man's shoulder. His face was set in a frown.

"That your honors may not fall dishonorably from your shoulders, I have come to warn you!" he said coldly and sternly. Joshakawa felt the muscular frame stiffen under his hand, but there was no trace of resentment, no gleam in the dark eyes as Tokoramo again bowed his head and said quietly:

"In all humility I listen."

"Tokoramo," said Joshakawa, with the same stern manner. "The corruption in the heart of the lawless woman is not diversion, but destruction!"

"I do not quite understand," returned the young man, outwardly unmoved.

"All who labor for Japan must labor with a whole heart—and a clean one!"

"My loyalty is not questioned?" said Tokoramo, with a rising inflection.

Another Danger

"We question neither your loyalty nor your worth; but the danger which threatens you threatens Japan!" Joshakawa stepped back and drew himself up stiffly.

"Danger?" repeated Tokoramo, quietly. "I cannot imagine any. I am secure here; I confide in no European. I live carefully and alone—known only but to a few of my countrymen, even."

"Tokoramo!" cried the older man, sternly. "You are young, of honorable birth, sensitive in heart and mind, chosen of the Mikado to do the Mikado's greatest work here."

"To which my life is consecrated," said Tokoramo, gravely.

"But you are human," resumed Joshakawa, "and you have put yourself in danger's way—through a woman!"

"My dear friend!"

"I know it!" insisted Joshakawa.

"You come on account of that?" asked Tokoramo.

"I am an old man," said the other, in gentler tones. "My active work is over in all but keeping a watchful eye upon the interests which His Excellency directs. I have tonight received a report which startles and worries me."

"In regard to me?" inquired Tokoramo, calmly.

"In regard to a woman—Ilona Kerner!" was the stern reply.

Tokoramo smiled slightly.

"I think I could tell you everything about her," he said in tones of quiet relief, "that is, everything in any way necessary for you to know."

"I am sure you cannot, Tokoramo," declared the other, sternly. "If you are the man I believe you to be!"

Tokoramo half bowed in a manner that might mean many things but probably indicated a polite disbelief.

"Will you be seated?" he asked courteously. Joshakawa ignored the invitation.

"No, Tokoramo, you are not cognizant of the complete character of the woman, as I am! She is depraved, venturesome, inquisitive, sensual—the ruin and despair of many men!"

At this bitter arraignment of the woman he loved, Tokoramo's figure stiffened and his fists clenched for an instant, but the strong, yellow face and his dark eyes gave no betraying sign.

"I will not dispute you," he said quietly, after a short pause, "though it is impossible for me to believe what you say. But"—he bowed and spread out his palms in a gesture of humility—"what are your commands?"

"I do not command!" returned the older man instantly, with a softening of his manner. "I simply advise—and warn! In my position as sponsor for you younger men in Berlin, that is my one duty—to advise and warn. Tokoramo," he continued, with sudden kindliness as he put both hands on the young man's shoulders, "you are head and shoulders above us all! The inspired work which you fathered and are to complete is far and away above anything done in a generation and nothing—not even the lightest diversion—can stand in your way!"

Tokoramo inclined his head. "I have given my oath to complete my work," he said, with a note of passionate earnestness in his voice. "I am a son of Nippon—loyal to my people and my ruler!"

"It is enough!" declared Joshakawa, soberly. "My mission is fulfilled. I have warned you!"

He wheeled abruptly and was about to pass out when Iohaku appeared at the door and announced:

"Herr Lindener!"

Joshakawa started and stopped and threw a swift glance at Tokoramo.

"I will remain," he decided, and sat on the edge of the divan.

The visitor had barely been announced before he burst into the room on the heels of the servant. It was evident from his flushed face and ebullient entrance that Herr Lindener had spent the interval since his last visit in a tour of the cafes searching for a cognac to equal his Oriental host's.

"I came right up—I came right up!" he cried, rushing upon Tokoramo and gripping his passive hand. "I couldn't restrain to return to my friend of the admirable wit, generous nature and most superlative cognac!"

The Superb Cognac

Tokoramo bowed with dignity.

"Welcome!" he said. And he led the way to the liquor stand and the refilled decanter. Turning to follow him, Lindener saw Joshakawa for the first time.

"Ah!" he exclaimed, his face falling. "I hoped to find you alone! I am always unfortunate."

Tokoramo turned with an introductory wave of the hand.

"My friend Joshakawa, Herr Lindener," he said. "Though there be three of us, I will not spoil the company. I trust you still remember my cognac. I [illegible]"

"Remember it!" cried Lindener, hastening after him. "Nothing will ever spoil the recollection of it, I swear! Pardon my intrusion, but I have had the taste of this incomparable cognac lingering on my lips for three hours."

He took the small glass that Tokoramo offered him, held it up to the light, smelled it and closed his eyes in ecstasy. Tokoramo crossed to the desk and returned with a box of cigarettes.

"Will you smoke?"

"My friend, I will do anything you suggest!" cried Lindener, taking a cigarette. "The dispenser of this incomparable cognac may command my life, my honor, anything! Must I drink alone?" he suddenly asked, as he noticed that neither of the others held a glass.

"You will pardon me if I do not join?" begged Joshakawa, with a courteous gesture.

"Nor I—if you will pardon?" said Tokoramo.

"Pardon!" exclaimed the former with an extravagant wave of the cigarette. "My dear friends, I will do more. I will confess my supreme selfishness in the thought that there will be more for me!"

He tossed off the drink with a happy, drunken laugh and promptly refilled his glass. He took up his station by the liquor stand as if he had determined to spend the rest of his life there.

"You are an artist," remarked Tokoramo, presently. "Perhaps I have something here that will interest you as much as the cognac. I have some excellent Japanese drawings." He turned to his desk and began searching in one of the drawers.

Lindener held out his hand as if to restrain him while he held the cognac to his lips with the other.

"My dear friend!" he protested. "Let me impress upon you how little in the world interests me—excepting women and cognac."

"The drawings I speak of are of Japanese women," said Tokoramo with a smile as he drew them out of the desk.

The artist threw down the glass and threw up his hands.

"Hah! My friend, there you have me!" he cried, hurrying across to him. "Women, even on paper, interest me!"

"In colors—some of them," said the host as he spread them out on the desk. Lindener bent over them eagerly.

"God bless them as women of my color," he cried. "Let me see!"

"Your papers! Your work!" said Joshakawa swiftly in Japanese. Tokoramo nodded reassuringly and Lindener was too much interested to notice anything else. He gathered them up in his arms and fluttered delicately from one to another.

"Exquisite! Beautiful! [illegible] Superb! My dear Tokoramo!"

[illegible]

"If you see any you like, you may keep them."

"Like! Like!" cried the artist, almost overcome with emotion and cognac. "I [illegible] As an inspiration to my senses they go hand in hand with your most superlative cognac! Such [illegible] Such individuality of form! Perfect! Perfect!" He [illegible] to the liquor stand and poured himself another glass of cognac and held it high above his head.

"[illegible]" he cried. "To the ladies of Japan!"

"Perhaps you would like to keep them," said Tokoramo, as the German put down his glass. "If they would help you to give you any further pleasure I would be honored if you would accept them."

"My friend, it is too much! Too much! I thank you! I thank you!" he cried, his eyes going over the pictures. "Ah [illegible]" He held it out at arm's length and gazed at it lovingly. "Isn't it wonderful? And this! the vague embroidery revealing the graceful form! Oh! to [illegible] as he came to another. "And this one—this one with a face like a sleeping poppy at sunset! I must certainly go to Japan. If I can ever find the [illegible] I must certainly forgive Bruck everything for bringing me to you!"

Joshakawa [illegible]

"I remember your friend, Professor Bruck, said you were interested in the Japanese," he remarked [illegible]. "How did that come about first—may I ask?"

The Artist's Secret

Lindener turned on him with a magnificent wave of the hand.

"Oh, not to be mentioned again!" he declared. "A mere trifle called my attention to you!"

"Indeed!" murmured Joshakawa. "A mere trifle."

"Yes, a woman!" And Lindener burst into a hearty laugh at his own wit. Then with an exaggerated gravity. "Ah, let me correct myself there. It was not exactly the exquisite lady herself who was a trifle, but the remark she so lightly dropped."

"You interest me!" exclaimed Joshakawa.

"Well, I was somewhat deeply interested myself at first—you may believe me!" declared Lindener with a superior smile. "And that [illegible]

[illegible]

"I beg of you!" he exclaimed [illegible] a man of family!

Lindener [illegible]

"Your pardon, my friend, but [illegible] as I look at you more closely I see that—that you would hardly attract them."

Joshakawa ignored the uncomplimentary reference [illegible]

[illegible]

"[illegible]" replied Tokoramo with a courteous inclination toward Joshakawa.

Joshakawa leaned forward.

"But you were saying, Herr Lindener," he reminded him, "that a woman first attracted your attention our way."

Lindener smiled at him in [illegible]

"Oh, not to be [illegible], my friend," he declared. "Not to be mentioned again!"

"Why [illegible]" insisted the older man.

"It is so [illegible] useless," but [illegible] that I doubt if [illegible] press him upon the point.

Leading Him On

Joshakawa darted [illegible] enigmatic [illegible] to the drunken [illegible] after the large [illegible] be happily [illegible]

CONSTIPATION, BILIOUSNESS, COATED TONGUE, HEADACHE OR BAD STOMACH

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too, occasionally.

A week later, another girl beat the tom-tom, and, when all had assembled to acquire knowledge, the cards were brought out, and, between deals and slams and disputes over tricks and scores, it was decided that it would be perfectly lovely to know how to speak French.

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

Odd, Va.:—"I am enjoying better health than I have for 20 years, and I believe I can safely say now that I am a well woman. I was reared on a farm and had all kinds of heavy work to do which caused the troubles that came on me later. For five years during the Change of Life I was not able to lift a pail of water. I had hemorrhages which would last for weeks and I was not able to sit up in bed. I suffered a great deal with my back and was so nervous I could scarcely sleep at night, and I did not do any housework for three years.

"Now I can do as much work as any woman of my age in the county, thanks to the benefit I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I recommend your remedies to all suffering women."—Mrs. MARTHA L. HOLLOWAY, Odd, Va.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-Page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today. Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

The Right Road to Health — By Annette Kellermann

The Bathing Suit Figure, and How to Acquire It by Exercising

A WOMAN with what I call the New York figure was trying on a pair of corsets. The fitter mentioned in a deprecating way that Madame's hips [illegible]

Now [illegible]

[illegible] of the blood to the most vital part of the body. Many women insist that their [illegible] loose, but I notice that [illegible] a long time [illegible] off.

Not Healthy Fat

[illegible] you walk or exercise [illegible] for circulation of [illegible] of the body is tightly [illegible] of armor, even if the armor is of satin or coutil.

Put an elastic band around your wrist. You [illegible] of it after a minute or [illegible] it does not hurt you. [illegible] all kinds of exercise. [illegible] The rest of your [illegible] pink flesh [illegible] under the [illegible] corsets.

Then the more you force down the flesh of the lower limbs by lacing your long stays the more you are harming [illegible]

I have noticed women with tight fitting dresses over tight corsets show a ridge of flesh at the edge of the corset.

The Harm It Does

The flesh belongs above in its natural [illegible] When you force even a particle of skin out of its correct place, you drag with it an accompaniment of muscles and tissues and in a way, you get the entire body out of gear.

[illegible]

[illegible] way to get your natural [illegible] figure [illegible] that [illegible] keep squeezing your hips. [illegible] You can do it if you keep [illegible] if you have the [illegible]

EXERCISE I.

This exercise if it is done often enough will reduce the size of the hips and thighs. It will build up the calf of the leg. When you find very large hips and thin legs, there is some stoppage of the circulation which should be overcome.

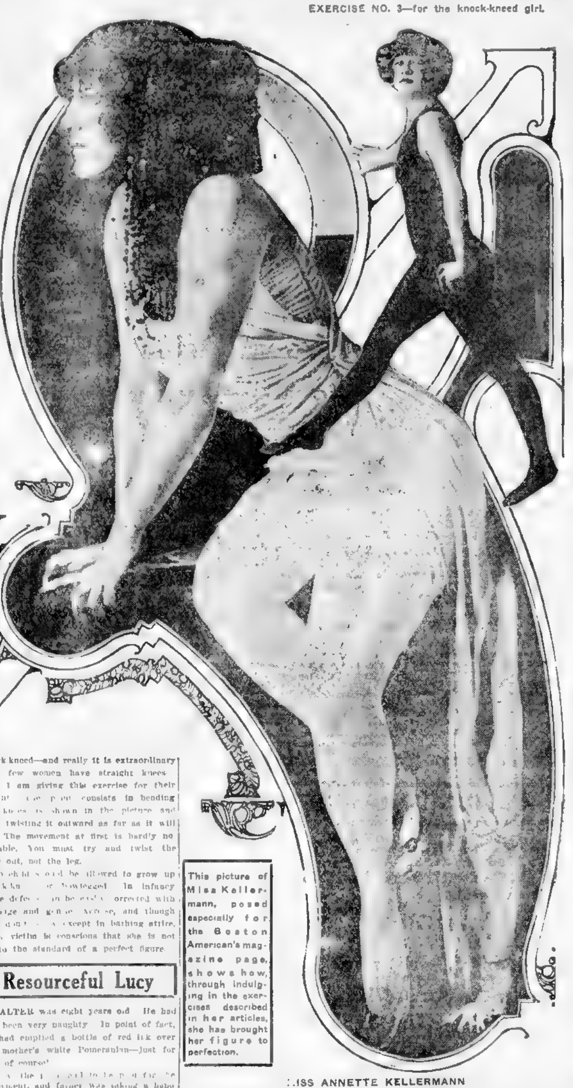
Stand erect, arms raised. Rise on tiptoe. Bend the knees, lower the body until [illegible] Hold this position while you [illegible] Rise again, inhaling deeply; stand on tiptoe for an instant and then repeat the exercise with force and vigor. [illegible] do this at least twenty or thirty times both morning and evening.

EXERCISE II.

[illegible] can be done standing on the floor or from a slight elevation, a foot stool or step. At first it will be necessary to hold on to something or put the hand against the wall, afterward the exercise must be done free, keeping perfectly balanced. Stand on one leg, stretch the other and fling it out forward with all the strength you have. Feel the stretch [illegible] of the legs and thighs. Stretch the leg far out to the side and then to the back. Repeat the exercise with the other leg.

So many women complain of being knock kneed—and really it is extraordinary how few women have straight knees—that I am giving this exercise for their benefit. The point consists in bending the knees as shown in the picture and then twisting it outward as far as it will go. The movement at first is hardly noticeable. You must try and twist the knee out, not the leg.

No child should be allowed to grow up knock kneed or bowlegged. In infancy these defects can be easily corrected with massage and gentle exercise, and though [illegible] except in bathing attire, every victim is conscious that she is not up to the standard of a perfect figure.



EXERCISE NO. 3—for the knock-kneed girl.

This picture of Miss Kellermann, posed especially for the Boston American's magazine page, shows how, through indulging in the exercises described in her articles, she has brought her figure to perfection.

MISS ANNETTE KELLERMANN

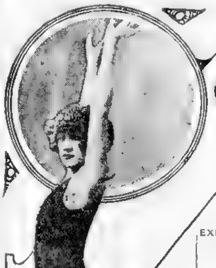
EXERICSE NO. 2—For stretching and relaxing the muscles of the legs and thighs.



EXERCISE NO. 1—For reducing the hips and thighs, and developing the calf.

Resourceful Lucy

WALTER was eight years old. He had been very naughty. In point of fact, he had emptied a bottle of red ink over his mother's white Pomeranian—just for fun, of course!

Now the [illegible] for the enjoyment, and father was taking a hand in the game.

Little Lucy, Walter's sister, was in the room at the time of the conflict. Thud, [illegible] Walter's wailings.

At last Lucy could stand it no longer. Bursting with indignation, she stamped her tiny foot on the floor.

"Tread on his corn, Wal!" she cried. "That'll stop him!"

JUSTICE WITHOUT MERCY

By WINIFRED BLACK.

DID you see the story in the paper about the girl who had a woman arrested and put in jail for slander?

The girl was young and well to do—she has a good position in some millinery shop or other, so the papers said, wears neat and rather smart clothes and is pretty.

She lives at home, with her mother, brothers and sister—and she has a sweetheart. That's what all the trouble is about—the sweetheart.

The woman who was arrested said some thing about the girl to the sweetheart, and the sweetheart [illegible] the girl about [illegible] and the girl had the woman arrested for slander.

The woman who was arrested was almost scared to death when the policeman came after her. She has a husband and four little children, and the baby has been ill for some time. The woman cried and [illegible] to forgive her.

But the girl laughed when she heard about the children, and would not withdraw the charge. So the mother left three of her little children at home alone and went to jail taking her baby with her. And the girl who had her arrested seems to think it is all just exactly as it should be.

Perhaps it is—who knows? Perhaps the woman with the four children talks faster and says more than she should. Perhaps those few days in jail will teach her to bridle her tongue.

But do you know what I would do if I were the sweetheart in the case? I would break my engagement with this extremely just young person—and I wouldn't be her sweetheart another day—no, not even if she had eyes like purple pansies and hair as black as night and a voice like dripping honey.

I wouldn't tie myself up for life with an unforgiving nature like that for all the promises ever made this side of the Garden of Eden.

"You are five minutes late—where have you been?"

"What did you do with the $5 I saw you put in your purse yesterday?"

"I was looking at you when you smiled at the girl this morning."

"You forgot our wedding anniversary—I shall never forgive you."

Can't you hear those sentences and a dozen like them come ringing down out of the future of the man who marries a girl who prides herself upon the fact that she cannot forgive?

"I am not generous," said a woman I know not [illegible], "but I know I am just."

And she [illegible] was so proud of being just, as she called it, turned a helpless little girl out into the street because the little girl had done wrong and ought to suffer for it.

Just! Oh heart of iron, give me no such justice.

I don't want justice for myself nor for those I love. I want mercy—sympathy, forgiveness—and until I am so perfect that I need none of these myself I pray I may never forget to give them, and to give them freely and with an open heart.

So she slandered you, did she, my high-headed proud young woman, with your beauty and your youth and your home and your friends—she, the poor little, friendless, hard working mother? What a pity you couldn't forgive her for it—and make her your loving friend for life.

Wouldn't it have been nice if you could have gone to the little woman in her crowded little flat, and taken a bit of candy for the children and invited them all, every one of them, to your wedding?

Well, you are young yet—some day you [illegible] and wish you hadn't been quite so proud of being what no doubt seems to you "absolutely just."

The Manicure Lady

"I WAS up to the ball park to see the Red Sox," said the Head Barber. "They fought great."

"What are you talking about?" asked the Manicure Lady. "The only Red Sox I ever knew about is the kind folks wear."

"I mean the baseball team," said the Head Barber.

"For Heaven's sake, George!" exclaimed the Manicure Lady. "I hope you ain't going to bore me with any of them baseball discussions. That's all I have heard since Spring wrapped herself in the lap of Winter, or, however, the poet says it. Base—Ball!

"Honest to goodness, George, there ain't much else to hear now that the races is a thing of the past and poor old Joe Brow, the bookmaker, has went to Europe to seek for fresh fields and jaspers green. There was a time when a girl at this job could get a few hunches when she was conversing with men of brains, but that time has went past, George, you may be sure. The only [illegible] you get from a gent that comes in now is the [illegible] that you have of his suspense."

"What has what?" asked the Head Barber.

"[illegible]" [illegible] the Manicure Lady, raising her eyebrows with a slight suggestion of scorn and hauteur, one part of which was tripped.

"You mean at his expense, kiddo," said the patient Head Barber. "Not 'at his suspense.' Girls should choose their words as careful as they choose their steady company."

"George," said the Manicure Lady, "some of these days I won't be here no more, and when the time comes when all the faces that I knew and loved will be saddened and kind of wet with them useless tears, then you will know, George, that the girl you used to joke at and poke fun at was a girl who was illequipped to fight the battle of life with a big strong lot of men like you—men that should be protecting her with their every thought and their every action instead of seeking a means of tormenting her—men that should realize their superior mind and muscle and magnetism—men that should grasp the true weakness of the weaker. Some day, when the daisies are nodding over my head and in the poplar trees above the little bluebirds match the sky, then you will know—then you will know."

"Gee, kiddo, I didn't mean to hurt your feelings," said the Head Barber, wiping away some tears with a hot towel. "I never knew you could talk that way."

"I can't," said the truthful Manicure Lady. "I learned them lines out of a book because I wanted to make you bawl. Here's a clean handkerchief, George, one that I ain't even unfolded. Now, you big boob, have a real cry!"

To Him Who Waits

JACK and Dolly have not been married very long. A few days ago they went together on a shopping expedition—to the land of frills and frocks.

"Now, dearie, I shan't be long," said Dolly, as they entered the emporium. "You sit in this comfortable chair, and wait while I match these two samples of ribbon."

Jack duly sat down in the furnishing department, and Dolly disappeared in the nether regions.

"Have I kept you long, my poor dear?" asked Dolly sadly, on her return.

"Oh, I haven't minded a bit!" came the reply. "I [illegible] on a car and went to the [illegible] I had some tea and went for a ride on Fred's new motor [illegible] find you [illegible] your ribbons?"

"One of them, dearest. But it's so provoking! I shall have to come again, for they're just closing the shop."

Then Ice Was Served

"I think that's an excellent idea," remarked the new boarder, as he finished his soup.

"Ah!" said Mrs. Starvem. "Not used to beginning your dinner with soup, eh?"

"Soup? I thought it was hot water to prevent dyspepsia!"

A Profitable Case

"Where did you get that fur overcoat, doctor?" asked one of his patients.

"I got this when Mr. Burrows had appendicitis," the doctor replied.

Encouraging Him

I.—A VILLAINOUS HERO.

Claude Eclaire, who is, as our readers know, a real hero and a phenomenal one at that, is surprised beyond measure to see that the peasants are treating Desperate Desmond, the international crook, as a hero. The simple-minded folk little know Desmond's true character, but Claude resolves to get him.

II.—CAPTURED.

Claude, pretending to join with the peasants in acclaiming Desmond as a hero, rushes into the crowd and manages to get his grasp on the villain, who is as a child in his strong arms. It is a sad shock for the villain, who had been complacently receiving the adulations of the crowd to be suddenly captured.

III.—THE OIL TANK.

At last Claude's mind is made up to rid the world forever of such a scoundrel as Desmond has proved himself to be. So he carries the villain by night to one of the great oil tanks near the city. In the silent darkness Claude will hurl the wretch far into the middle of the vast reservoir of oil.

IV.—THE LIGHTED MATCH.

Not satisfied with having Desmond in the tank, Claude, who thinks he might swim to the edge and clamber out, throws a lighted match over the top. When it touches the oil a sheet of flame will end the career of one of the world's greatest villains. But stay! have you observed the peasant who was stealing oil?

V.—THE BURNING LAMP.

Of course you did observe that peasant lurking in the shadow. Now you see how he caught the lighted match in the lamp he came to fill illicitly, and by its light he is enabled to rescue the villain, now an oily villain in more senses than one. Thus Claude's well-planned scheme comes to naught through a thieving peasant.

VI.—OFF WITH THE GIRL.

"I'm the boyski!" cries Desperate Desmond, "and I've got the girlski.' True enough, he is now free and rushing Rosamond away from her true lover, Claude, who again dashes on in an apparently hopeless chase after the villain. Claude has right on his side, but Desmond has the peasants. See tomorrow which wins.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

It is now planned to hold a used motor car show in the Boston Arena, June 15 to 21, in which nothing but second-hand cars will be exhibited. This is a striking departure from automobile shows of the past and is, unquestionably, one that merits attention.

O. D. Corbett, who has had the management of the majority of automobile shows throughout New England, is the man who has been daring enough to attempt this innovation. His scheme is a comprehensive one and looks most feasible. The exhibitors will be restricted to factory branches and local dealers, and no second-hand dealer will be permitted to make exhibits.

Mr. Corbett argues that many of the dealers have second-hand cars which they can readily dispose of at such an exhibition as the one proposed. The cars will be displayed and if any are sold during the day they can be removed at the close of the show in the evening and other cars be substituted.

Details are being worked out for the convention of sales managers of the New York Automobile Board of Trade. The dates have not been definitely settled, but they will probably be the latter part of June or early in July.

The program will include the reading of papers bearing upon subjects peculiar to the sales department of the automobile manufacturer and designed to be beneficial to not only the manufacturer but the dealer and individual owner.

The field day of the Electric Vehicle Club of Boston, the largest automobile club in America, will be held at the New England Kennel Club, near Braintree, on the afternoon and evening of June 5. A big attendance of members is anticipated and it is the desire of President Baker and the members of the Touring Committee that those participating in the outing travel to and from the meeting in electric vehicles.

* * *

J. A. Hemstreet of the A. A. A. Touring Bureau and W. McKee White of the United States Motor Company, in a Stoddard-Dayton car, are traveling along the Jersey Coast making strip maps and general maps of the roads from New York to Atlantic City and Cape May and return through Philadelphia and Trenton. It is probable that the party will also make a run up to Delaware Water Gap.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE STREET, May 9.—Midday—The Boston market was strong and active at the start and during the first hour most important coppers showed gains. The largest advances in early trading were made by North Butte, up 1⅜; Mohawk, up 2 points; Lake, up 1½; Copper Range, up 1⅛; Hancock and Indiana, one point higher each, and Tamarack up 4 points.

A Houghton dispatch says that Judge Severnes in the United States District Court there has granted a two weeks' adjournment of the hearings on the petition of Godfrey M. Hyams for an injunction restraining the Tamarack and allied corporations from proceeding with management's stamp mill plans. The case will be resumed in Calumet, the judge consenting to hold court in that city because of the large number of copper country witnesses to be examined. Meanwhile depositions will be taken before a special commissioner in Boston.

Among coppers which were fractionally higher during the morning were Shannon, Granby, Isle Royale, Butte & Superior, Old Colony, Trinity, Franklin and East Butte.

The New York market grew firmer and before noon Steel and Amalgamated had each climbed a point and Reading was 1¼ and American Smelting 1⅛ higher.

New York Opening Prices Up.

Prices rules higher in the New York market at the opening and there was not only an absence of much selling pressure but there was a moderate demand for stocks from several potent sources. Steel common, which closed yesterday at 65, started at 65½ and soon gained ¼ more. This advance in Steel helped the whole list. American Smelting and Amalgamated each rose ¾ and a substantial gain was made in both Utah Copper and Nevada Consolidated. The railroad list was generally strong. Reading rose ⅞ to 174⅛ despite rioting in anthracite fields. Lehigh Valley advanced ⅜. Canadian Pacific opened unchanged but made a fractional gain upon few transactions. Erie common was also unchanged at the outset. Baltimore & Ohio rose ⅜. A gain of ½ was made in both Southern Pacific and Union Pacific. The Curb was strong. Americans in London showed evidence of support, and a reduction of one-half per cent. to three per cent. was made by the Bank of England in its minimum rate of discount today.

The price of copper metal advanced nearly a pound in London today where the market for that metal was strong at the opening. Spot and futures were up 18s. 9d. each. This caused moderate buying of copper shares in the stock market. Rio Tintos reflected the metal advance by selling ¾ higher at 76½.

Financial News in Brief.

Granby directors have decided not to do any new financing for the Hidden Creek property, but pay the initial costs of erecting a 2,000-ton mill out of current earnings, which are at the rate of $100,000 a month net. The total equipment cost is estimated at $1,500,000.

Losses through floods in the South are a very depressing factor in stock market consideration of Illinois Central at present.

The United States Steel Corporation will render its unfilled tonnage report tomorrow, and one of the rumors Wall Street hears is that it will show an increase of 250,000 tons.

President Charles M. Schwab of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation will take a party of business men and bankers from New York to Bethlehem to inspect the plant and to be shown how $2,000,000 is to be spent in improvements.

The production figures for April by the Copper Producers' Association were a great surprise to many interested in the industry, and in some quarters it is suspected that stocks may be hidden at refineries.

The fields tapped by the Virginian Railway are estimated to have 20,000,000,000 tons of coal, which will certainly provide it with business for a long period of years.

On large transactions British-American Tobacco sold up to 25¼, a new high record, on the New York Curb yesterday, and it is said that the buying was on inside account.

Boston bankers have invited the American Bankers' Association executive council to meet in this city next year.

It is announced by Chairman Pujo of the House committee which is to investigate the Money Trust that detailed reports of business connections and operations now being received from banks will not be made public.

James J. Hill expects the Great Northern road to haul from 14,000,000 to 15,000,000 tons of ore this year. Previous estimates were about 12,000,000.

Greene-Cananea April production was 4,654,000 pounds of copper, 134,597 ounces of silver and 827 ounces of gold. This is a high copper record for this company.

The Henry M. Whitney plan for the reorganization of the Rhode Island Coal Company provides for sale of the property of the present company at auction on May 17 and its purchase by a new company with $800,000 capital. The present company is capitalized at $4,200,000.

The Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company has been granted authority by the Railroad Commission to issue 5,250 additional shares of a par value of $100 each to consolidate with the Lexington & Boston line upon the terms of an exchange of a share for a share.

It is announced in Montreal that the Canadian Northern is considering the electrification of its lines in that city and an electric route to Ottawa.

Best Interior Player-Piano
THE AUTOPIANO

The Autopiano unites in a single instrument a high-class upright, which can be played with the hands (the old way), and the player-piano, which is played with the perforated music-roll (the new way), thus enabling anyone, young or old, to render in a finished manner any musical composition. The construction of the Autopiano is most durable, and, unlike others, who use rubber tubes in construction—in the Autopiano lead tubes are used and are indestructible. Its sweet tone is unequaled.

The Titanic Wreck and Investigation Appear Humorous to Certain Englishmen

Perhaps Verdicts for Damages Rendered by American Courts Will Make the Titanic Murders Seem Less "Funny" Eventually

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner

Certain British newspapers began their comment on the crime of the Titanic by complaining of unfairness on the part of the American investigating committee. There was complaint that our Senators investigating "lacked technical knowledge of the sea."

That sounded highly appropriate, coming from spokesmen of a steamship company that had just drowned sixteen hundred persons and brought one shivering, palefaced Ismay safe ashore.

It would seem that Englishmen might be modest in their tone within a few days of murdering sixteen hundred men, women and children in an accident that certainly emphasized the stupidity of some English sailors and the cowardice of ONE English manager.

Certain Englishmen—a minority, fortunately—have a choice capacity for self-approval, and they have now reached a state of mind in which it seems to them shameful to criticise the blundering, reckless incompetents to whom the lives of thousands are entrusted at sea.

Some of the more degraded among the English newspapers even find cause of mirth in the Titanic disaster and in the investigation of that crime. They are rehearsing "choice, funny bits" in the evidence given before the commission.

Americans, whose fellow citizens were murdered in hundreds by stupidity, incompetence and cowardice, do not see the humor of the Titanic achievement. And Americans hope, before they have done, to make the whole affair seem less humorous to the Englishmen who now joke about it.

The collecting of a few millions of dollars damages from the White Star line would do good and make unpopular the kind of seamanship that kills passengers and runs away.

We believe that the courts of the United States will find a way to establish responsibility, with due regard for international law, and fix damages that will make the killing of so many Americans seem quite serious when the day comes to pay the money.

Unlike Ismay—saved with women and children—the White Star company cannot run away. It must face and meet court decisions here, for it has property here. Its big ships MUST come here—and they can be held to make good American court decisions, sad as that may seem to English owners.

The courts will have abundant facts proved—thanks to an American investigation which did not whitewash.

Knowing that they were among icebergs, the captain of the ship and the manager of the line were going at top speed and enjoying an elaborate banquet the night of the disaster.

The captain was not on the bridge. The man in the lookout had no glass.

No general alarm was sent by wireless until too late—although one of the ship's builders on board declared that the boat would sink within an hour.

The bulkheads were not closed, and COULD NOT be closed, and the ship was not fit to be sent to sea.

Passengers were not told the truth, and no intelligent effort was made to save them.

More than five hundred steerage passengers were locked below in a ship known to be sinking and THEY were murdered.

There were not life boats enough for one-third the passengers and crew. Such as there were had no lights, no compass, no water. Two or more had plugs out of the bottom and sank at once.

While the British seamen in charge of so many lives were rushing to destruction, blindly and stupidly, at least one other British sea captain was within reach AND MIGHT HAVE SAVED EVERY HUMAN BEING ON THE TITANIC HAD HE NOT BEEN TOO MUCH OF A COWARD TO RISK HIS LIFE IN THE ICE NEAR THE TITANIC.

So we have one British seaman killing hundreds of American citizens because recklessness or orders from Ismay, who wanted a record, induced him to run his ship at full speed among icebergs—KNOWING that the ice was there. And we have another British seaman getting signals of distress from the sinking Titanic, and refusing to go to her aid because he feared the ice.

A nice choice British seamanship offered to travellers on that disastrous day.

One British captain, reckless to the point of insanity, rushing his passengers to destruction.

And another British captain, cautious as only cowardice can make a man, refusing to help a sinking ship lest he might damage his vessel.

And English newspapers complain because this country ventured to investigate the killing due to these two types of "British seamanship."

When these facts are put before our courts in suits for damages, we have no doubt that our British cousins will see less humor in the disaster than they see at present.

And when the public realizes that White Star ships are unsafe—a fact that we shall be charmed to emphasize at intervals—and when trade shifts to the German and other ships that are NOT manned by captains reckless or timid, and to companies that are not managed by an Ismay with the automatic self-saving brain—falling dividends and fading prosperity will make the English realize that killing "blasted Yankees" costs money, and does not pay.

Sincerely we hope that for every third class passenger locked below and murdered by the White Star line suits for heavy damages will be brought, and won, by surviving relatives. We trust our courts to teach the White Star line that even third class people cannot be cheaply killed where our courts have jurisdiction.

For every person killed in that disaster of blunders and of cowardice the highest possible damages should be awarded—especially to the impoverished steerage survivors and the relatives of the dead steerage passengers.

There should be lawyers to take up each case and obtain the highest possible damages against the shamefully mismanaged, technically incompetent and idiotic White Star line, that drowns its first class passengers through ignorance and negligence, and murders its third class passengers by locking them below the decks.

The English declare that this collection of incompetent and reckless ship managers has been treated unjustly in this country.

THEY HAVE BEEN TREATED FAR TOO GENTLY, WITH FAR TOO GREAT CONSIDERATION.

If the English admire a man like Ismay, whose third class passengers are locked below the decks while he runs to safety, if they hold up as an example of British technical skill and courage a gentleman who saves his life while women and children drown, they are welcome to the national pride that they feel in such a person.

But this country prefers to take him, and examine him, get the truth out of him if it can, and through him and others to discourage murder by neglect, murder by recklessness, and deliberate murder on the sea by locking men and women and children below the decks in time of danger.

One lesson of the Titanic disaster is this:

No man should be fool enough to trust himself to a White Star ship until convinced that the company has changed methods and managers. Try a German ship.

The Germans are sane and level headed—not reckless destroyers of human life, not cowards in time of disaster.

While the English captain and the English manager of the White Star line in blind recklessness were running their ship to death on the icebergs, the German captains were turning south and saving their passengers. The German lines are manned by trained seamen. The Germans do not send a great floating city out into the ocean commanded by an individual indifferent to icebergs in the path or put above that individual an Ismay, whose life any insurance company would probably gladly insure for a nominal consideration against risk based on self-sacrifice or courage.

We invite the excited and indignant British editors and shippers to bear in mind the fact that the boats that they operate carry American passengers principally. And these passengers and their government are entitled to protect their lives against reckless captains and against steamship company managers of the Ismay type, exceeding in capacity to protect their own individual safety.

We control these American ports and the docks that make the British steamship lines profitable.

We take the view, however offensive it may be to British prejudice, that the lives of American citizens are more important than the technical sensitiveness of British seamen.

And we propose to show these British seamen, if necessary, by cutting their carrying trade down to a minimum in favor of more careful lines and more competent nationalities, that killing first class passengers by neglect and carelessness, and murdering third class passengers by locking them below the decks, cannot be permanently profitable.

GOV. WILSON AND CHAMP CLARK

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—The stand taken by the Hearst papers in the Clark-Wilson candidacy matters is certainly justifiable. The Governor of New Jersey just at present is so busily occupied in trying to become a President that he has found no time to be a good Governor. If my information is correct, this is the first time since 1895 that a bill in New Jersey has been passed over the Governor's veto—and now the Legislature is casting wholesale reflection on the ability of Dr. Wilson by passing dozens of bills over his head.

Would a man with such distorted judgment and such a lack of knowledge of the law—a man whose political career has been carved out on paper, so to speak, and who is, comparatively, an infant in real experience—can such a man ever sanely aspire to become the head of the great republic? Can he even hope to successfully combat with Champ Clark for the honor of heading the Democratic ticket? Can a one-track man hope to sneeringly domineer a double-track nation?

The answer is a thundering "No!" When Dr. Woodrow Wilson ceases to be the Chief Executive of New Jersey—and the sooner he does the better it will be for the State—he should return to his profession—to the occupation where his complacent superiority can have full sway over the youth of the land.

For the sake of the country—for the sake of the individual—let us not entertain for one moment the thought that in Woodrow Wilson the Democrats have a man who can begin to compare with the Speaker, whose qualities, built up by years of experience, outshine the pitiful dimness of the aspiring pedagogue as a tungsten outshines a match.

WHAT IS THE PENALTY?

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Of all the editorial comment, you alone seem to have reached into the hideous maelstrom of this staggering marine calamity, and brought forth the one obvious, salient, deducible conclusion as to cause, result and responsibility.

Over and over again, I, too, have asked—Why, on the most modern structure of its time, meeting with disaster, with four long hours before finale, should there have been the life of even a ship's animal lost.

Why—nine of every ten men have always believed that each sea-going vessel was provided always with boats, rafts, pontoons, etc., to accommodate each and every living being on board, and sustain them, if need be, for many hours. I never dreamed that his was not so. The ghastly fact that it was not so, would seem to indicate clearly a premeditated murder.

Concerted action by every individual who has cause to mourn through this catastrophe, could be made to result in such penalty as would make this particular steamship line not only non-existent in a short time, but its name and title only a dreadful recollection. You can do much to bring this about. Start the work. There is need of one great, far-reaching object lesson—terrific in import—defying forgetfulness for all time; else the whole grim reaping of life were in vain.

Mythical Ideas About Old Friends

—AND—

Companions of Bachelor Days

By Dorothy Dix

ARE old things the best?

Certainly, you say. Do we not all sentimentally quote, "old wine, old books, old friends are best"? Do we not all go in for the cult of the antique?

Do we not squander our hard earned money on old mahogany that collapses when we try to use it—unless we have had the luck to be taken in by some dealer who has palmed off on us perfectly good Grand Rapids, with a few worm holes scientifically bored in it, for the real thing?

Do we not all yawn over old books that we know it is the correct thing to admire while we joyfully eat up the six best sellers?

Aren't we all hypocrites and liars when we stand before the old masters and rave over dingy, smudgy, faded canvasses that we secretly think perfectly hideous, and not to be compared with a nice, bright, cheerful brewery advertisement lithograph?

And do old friends come up to the mark any closer than other old things? Millions of tons of slushy sentiment has been written about the friends of other days, and the friends of our youth, and old friends being the best, and we are all inclined to get maudlin when we talk about the Johnnie Jones with whom we played marbles, and flew kites, and went to school, and with whom we swore a Damon an Pythias friendship that was to exist as long as life lasted.

This is particularly the case if you haven't seen Johnnie Jones for the last twenty or thirty years. He lives in your memory as the very ideal of comrade and friend, true and loyal and generous, one with whom you could share every thought and emotion. How often you think of that early friendship! How often you yearn for that early friend!

Then sometime you go out and hunt up Johnnie Jones. You find him dull, and stodgy, and common place, with a soul that never rises above the price of canned goods and dry groceries. Or he has developed into a mean, little skinflint, who preys upon widows and orphans. Or, more disillusioning still, he has degenerated into the village cut up with an endless store of ancient jokes that he tells over and over around the stove in the postoffice.

About an hour of Johnnie Jones' society bores you stiff, for, alas, you have outgrown your childhood friends as you have outgrown your childhood knickerbockers, and you can no more go back to the one than the other.

Are old friends the best? Not if you want help. Not if you want somebody to give you a boost up the ladder. In all Holy Writ there is nothing truer than this—"A prophet is not without honor save in his own country and among his own people." It is a bromide that every one's experience will bear out, that we have to go away from home to succeed.

If you're a doctor it is not your old friends who send for you when they get sick, unless they think you will practice on them for nothing. If you're a lawyer it is not your old friends who become your clients unless they expect to get legal advice gratis. If you want money to extend your business, go to strangers for it rather than your old friends. The stranger will have confidence in you and risk your judgment and ability far sooner than the man who has known you all his life.

For some inexplicable reason people who have known you from your childhood up never have any faith in you, and while they're willing to extend to you the hand of friendship they withhold the helping hand. It's your new friends that give you your chance.

Are old friends the best friends? Certainly the friends that a man acquires in his bachelor days are seldom any good to him. They are a gay, boisterous, roistering crowd, as a general thing, who help him throw away his money, encourage him to drink too much, and to waste his time and energies on dissipation that unfits him for his work.

It has been observed that after a man marries and settles down his wife's first occupation is almost invariably to freeze out her husband's old friends. At any rate, whether the wife is responsible for it or not, a man soon finds out after he is married that his old friends have somehow dropped away from him, and that he has acquired a supply of new friends, and that these new friends are a quieter, more earnest, more serious minded set of people than the old were, with higher ideals and nobler aspirations.

There may be times when he sighs for the old hail-fellow-well-met-friend of other days, but if he's honest with himself he knows that the new friends are better friends for him.

The truth is that friendship is progressive, not reactionary. If we amount to anything at all, if we are anything more than a sort of human vegetable, we go on advancing, broadening out, getting a little more liberal every year, and our friendships keep pace with our widening horizon. New interests, new pursuits bring new people into our lives, and we become friends with those whose outlook and ideals are the same as our own.

The idea of old friendship being the only friendship that is true and loyal, and that has most pleasure in it, is a myth. Old friends are good only when they keep step with us, and that does not happen very often. As a general thing new friends are best, and they are best when they have the latest modern improvements.

"Able Seaman"

By William F. Kirk

HE wasn't a Wall Street factor,
He wasn't "a man of parts,"
He was only a hero actor
In a drama of broken hearts.

His hands—we can't even fold them—
We would kiss them now, God knows,
Held babies while they could hold them
Out 'mid the icy floes.

Maker of angel and demon,
Maker of noble men,
Make me an Able Seaman
When I come to earth again.
